WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, Nov., 24, 1890.

The President has completed a rough draft of his annual message to Congress and it has been informally submitted to the members of his cabinet, and every one of them heartily endorses it. I cannot, without a gross violation of confidence, mention any of the subjects on which the message will treat; but, it can be said on undoubted authority that it will be one of the ablest documents ever sent to Congress, and that it will show in ringing words that the President's republicanism is as staunch as it ever was, and that he has not been stampeded by the result of the late elections.

The President is also doing good work in impressing upon the minds of every Republican member of the House who calls upon him, and every one that has yet arrived here has done so, the imperative necessity of being constantly in his seat during the session of Congress which begins a week from to-day, in order that as much business as possible may be transacted within the ninety days which it will last. And if the spirit shown by the Republicans already here, is fairly representative of the feelings of all the republican members of the House the democrats will be badly disappointed in their expectation of blocking the business of the House by raising the old cry of "no quorum." The indications now being that there will be more than a quorum of republicans present at every session of the House from 12 o'clock next Monday until high noon on the fourth day of March 1891, when the Fifty-first Congress expires.

There is not a word of truth in the democratic stories of strained relations existing between the President and Mr. Blaine. They were never on better terms than they are at this time, and both of them are working night and day to get the republican party in condition to win in 1892; and both of them are confident of succeding. They are not working for the success of any particular candidate—either themselves or others—but for the party and the great aim and principles which it represents, knowing that the rank and file of the party will as they have always done, make their preferences known when the time comes to elect delegates to the next national convention of the party, and that the best and most available man will be chosen to bear the republican standard to victory.

The authorities here are fully impressed with the gravity of the situation on the Indian reservations, and the President has telegraphed General Miles to take every possible precaution to prevent any deviltry on the part of the Indians, and besides all availalable troops have been instructed to get themselves in readiness to move at a moment's notice.

I have good reason to believe that Secretary Windom is engaged in preparing the details of a plan which will be submitted to Congress at an early day to provide for a large permanent increase in the amount of United States curreney in active circulation, He believes that the business of the country needs more money than is now in circulation.

There is already almost, if not quite a quorum of the House in Washington, and the important committees are getting down to work with a will. Several subcommittees of the House Committee on Appropriations held meetings last week and to-day Chairman Cannon presided over a meeting of the full committee, at which the estimates of the Treasury department for the various annual appropriations were read and referred to subcommittees. Mr. Cannon assured me that there would be no delay in reporting all of the regular appropriation bills to the House in ample time. He says three and possibly four of them will be reported before Christmas.

The treasury surplus increased more than $2,000,000 within the last week, but the senseless democratic howls of a vanishing surplus' continue just the same.

It now seems a foregone conclusion that the battle royal now raging among the democrats for the Speakership of the next House will also determine whether Hill or Cleveland shall lead the democrats to defeat in 1892. In vain have the long headed democrats struggled with the shallow pates in Congress to go easy in this matter. They will not go easy. It's a knock-down and drag out fight of giants these men, and they don't care a snap whose corns are trod on as long as they think they are making progress toward the goal of their ambition. Four Candidates have already opened headquarters here and from the quantity of free red liquor, etc., that is being liberally dispensed, somebody, is, in sporting slang "backing" term for winners, Mills is the only candidate so far who has had the nerve to come out squarely for free trade, and for that reason republicans would like to see him win. He openly expresses what seven out of every ten democrats secretly believe in but lack the courage to say so.

CURTIN AND QUAY.

We find the following political gossip in the "Man About Town" department of the New York Star of Wednesday.

"Bluff old Andrew G. Curtin, Pennsylvania's famous War Governor, is at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. He visits New York once or twice a year, and each visit finds his step less firm and his whitened locks growing rapidly thinner But his eye is as keen and his spirits are as bouyant as they were twenty-eight or thirty years ago, when he was the biggest man in Pennsylvania—when Simon Cameron was over in Washington. It was not long afterward that Cameron wrested his political power from him, and eventually drove him out of the party, or, rather, hastened his entrance into the Democratic party, toward which his broad and liberal statesmanship naturally tended.

* * *

"The first hard blow the Camerons struck Curtin was in luring Quay from him—the same Quay; for Matthew Stanley, even at that time, had begun to show those marked peculiarities of character which have since made him Chairman of the Republican National committee, but failed to 'get him a Governor of his own' in Pennsylvania. In 1858 Quay was elected Prothonotary in Beaver county, and in 1860 went into the Legislature. His energy and shrewdness then brought him to the notice of Governor Curtin, who, at the expiration of the session, made him his private secretary. After the famous meeting of the Governors at Washington in 1862, Curtin appointed Quay as State Agent at Washington. In everything he was Curtin's man. Everything he had he owed to Curtin, and he seemed to be the most loyal henchman the Governor had, and the Camerons, already jealous of Curtin's power and popularity, noticed his activity. At the close of the war he went back to the Legislature, and was a candidate for Speaker, backed by the Curtin faction. To carry out their own schemes the Camerons found it necessary to defeat Quay. Simon Cameron was a candidate for the United States Senate, and it was not policy to have any serious split in the party. Don Cameron was managing his father's canvass.

'Go up to Mr. Quay's room and see with what he will be satisfied,' he said to his father's private secretary, now one of the best known political writers of Pennsylvania. The young man obeyed orders.

"Did Mr. Cameron send you to me?" said young Quay.

'Quay smoked a moment in silence, and then said 'Tell Mr. Cameron that I want eight appointments, and that I will have to talk with him.'

"D——n the fellow. I like his impudence,' said Don when Quay's message was reported to him. 'I'll give them.'

* * *

"With that Cameron went to Quay's room himself. What passed between them no one knows, but Mr. Quay got a complimentary vote for Speaker, got his eight appointments, and from that time on was one of the most loyal adherents of the clan Cameron. All of which, as the story goes, is one of the reasons why ex-Governor Curtin looks with satisfaction upon the second downfall of his old private secretary.

Literary Note.

The discussion of the various topics at the recent Church Congress held in Philadelphia, will be published, verbatim early next month by Thomas Whittaker, New York. The edition being limited, early subscriptions are requested by the publisher.

SENSIBLE republicans will, as usual, enjoy their Thanksgiving turkey this year; but the dinner would have been all the more enjoyable had we succeeded in cooking the democratic rooster.

SOMEBODY should offer a chromo to the democrat elected to the next House who is not a candidate for Speaker.

Religion in the Schools.

We notice that an attempt is being made in New York State by a prominent religious denomination to strengthen the cause of public morality of the masses by the introduction of a system of religious instruction in the public schools, and that the general consent of the Christian sects is asked in order that such a method may be applied. This is an important question and is deserving of consideration.

The main point in this matter is easily discernible, however, and it is not a new one nor has it previously been left undiscussed. It is, shall the State allow any form of religious teaching in schools that are maintained at the public expense? Shall the government countenance in even the slightest degree any connection between Church and State? We admit the strength of all the arguments that can be advanced for such a modified alliance. Secular instruction, how complete soever it may be, can never altogether supply the need of religious (not moral alone) training. Christianity, precious as it is, like all desirable possessions, requires constant vigilance to keep it intact. There are many reasons why religious instruction should prevail in the public schools, but there are also reasons to be advanced in opposition. Our American population is not composed of Christians alone, and even among the Christians themselves there are a hundred different religious beliefs. Can all these contending views agree together on a common basis of religious teaching, rudimentary, however, it might be? Evidently not,

Consequently, it is plainly realized by the candid and unprejudiced student of this vexing question, that notwithstanding the high standard of the arguments for religious teaching in our public schools, the arguments in opposition are superior. At the present time at any rate, the State is not in a position to modify its position on the school question with any degree of justice to the different interests concerned.

Other countries have, in a degree at least, solved this question by providing separate educational funds for each religious belief, and the same arrangement has been mentioned as favorable for adoption in our school system. If there were not more than two or three divisions of the total fund for educational purposes such a scheme would be practicable, but if every little sect and all the upholders of conflicting views on moral or immoral ideas should demand their share of the fund, the whole system of education would be ruined and such a method would prove itself totally impracticable. We have read and heard of other projected arrangements to take the place of our present school system, but of these some were deficient in the explanation of necessary details, and others were unfeasible.

While we have not as yet a better system to take its place it is clearly the duty of the State to maintain the public school system as it now exists under the Constitution of Pennsylvania in all its integrity. The future may right the deficiencies that belong to the system, and in the meantime all private religious instruction can be freely carried on, with additional expense, of course, but under circumstances which the law is at present unable to relieve. We have given this subject deep study, and if we have failed to arrive at correct conclusions we have the consolation of knowing that they are at least candid and unaffected.

At the present time, A. D. 1890, we believe that the present Pennsylvania public school system, bereft of religious instruction though it may be, is nevertheless the best solution of the question, consistent with general education and a due regard to the rights of every American citizen.

Two Items From an Exchange.

The sensible business man advertises all the time, but every business man advertises some time. If you never advertise don't go on fooling yourself with the idea that you are a business man. You are not in it.

Our readers would confer a great favor by sending all the items of news which may come under their observation; such as births, deaths, marriages sickness, accidents, parties and other minor events of public interest.

THE speech made by Representative Springer just before daylight at the Thurman banquet proved conclusively that prohibition did not prevail at the aforesaid banquet. He predicted that in 1892 the democrats would carry 35 states. If the banquet had lasted another half hour, and the supply of whisky had not given out, doubtless some wobble-legged jackass would have waxed his ears and predicted that the democrats would receive the unanimous vote of the next electoral college, and there would have been as much sense in such a prediction as in the one made by Mr. Springer.

THE New York Mail and Express suggests that the annual report of the postmaster general, just submitted to the president, makes a splendid exhibit of the work done by his department during the past year. It is not too much to say that no year has ever shown a greater improvement in the postal service. A new series of stamps has been issued. New contracts for stamped envelopes have been made, by which a saving of $40,000 has been effected. Washington city is to have a new postoffice building. Steps have been taken toward the establishment of post offices at sea. The free delivery system has been estabtished in many small towns and country plaaes. Lottery business has been excluded from the mails. The efficiency of the railway postal service, under Superintendent Bell, has been greatly improved. New postal facilities have been provided in in many places, more than 16,500,000 miles having been added to the service in establishment of new routes and the expediting of old ones. More new postoffices have been established than in any former year. The most wonderful thing of all is that all these great improvements have been made without a cent of additional cost. The gross revenue for the past year exceeded that of the preceeding year by $5,000,000; and the additional expenditures did not keep up with the additional receipts. This is a report of which the postmaster general has a right to be proud. The postal service has never been so thorough, so extensive and so efficient as it is now: We congratulate Mr. Wannamaker on his success. Bnt our enterprising postmaster general is not satisfied with past successes nor with present efficiency. He looks forward to still greater improvements. A large part of his report is taken up with his scheme for a limited postal telegraph service as part of the postoffice department or as a separate bureau, transmitted by wire and delivered by carriers. Mr. Wannamaker does not contemplate the purchase or erection of telegraph lines by the government, but asks authority to make suitable contracts with existing companies for the handling of postal telegrams. In connection with the service he would have established a telegraph money order system for amounts not to exceed $100. This scheme has evidently been elaborated with great care. The convenience it would afford are undoubted, and one of the first duties of the congress will be the thoughtful consideration of the new plan.

HON. J. S. CLARKSON thinks it necessary, if the republicans are to win in 1892 that the republican newspapers be better supported, and their circulation more widely extended. In this Mr. Clarkson shows his good sense. If all the republican support was withdrawn from them a very large percentage of the Democratic and so-called independent newspapers would be compelled to suspend for lack of patronage. Let good republicans see to it that newspapers which advocate their own political faith be better supported, and the result will soon be apparent in better republican newspapers. Every conscientious editor, and no profession contains a larger proportion of conscientious men, will make his paper as good as the support given him will justify, in fact, in a majority of cases, he makes it far better than the support he receives will justify.

THE fight between the Hill and Cleveland factions of the democratic party for the nomination in 1892 has begun in earnest, and so far Cleveland seems to have the best of it, but his opponent is a very slick politician, and he may yet succeed in downing the ex-President. It is believed that Hill will be willing to throw whatever strength he may possess to anybody who can beat Cleveland if he becomes convinced that he cannot do it himself. The campaign for the Speakership of the next House will play an important part in the Hill-Cleveland fight, and it will therefore be watched with all the closer interest.

DEMOCRATIC papers are wasting lots of space in telling the President what he should put in his annual message to Congress and what he should leave out. Mr. Harrison is competent to decide this matter for himself, and the Republican party has confidence in his wisdom and knows from experience, the best of all teachers, that he will do what is right.

If you suffer from catarrh why don't you take Hood's Sarsadarilla, the common sense remedy? It has cured many people.

Lots of Deer Meat

On Monday a party of hunters from Pleasant Gap and Nittany Valley returned from the Green Woods with the best haul of deer thus far heard of. One man who saw them said that they had eleven, one of which was a thirteen pronged buck. This seemed a little big and upon further inquiry it was learned that the party really had five large deer, one of which was a six prong buck. This is the best record of a hunt made in Centre county this season. Speaking of deer, it might not be out of place just here to remark that Judge Thomas A. Riley shot a fine large deer one day last week. Also that a pure white deer was captured on the seven mountains one day recently. All in all it seems as if deer were pretty plenty after all; indeed, plentier than they have been for years.

UPON the reassembling of Congress one of the first duties of the House of Representatives will be to perfect and pass a Congressional apportionment bill, based upon the population returns of the eleventh census. Under any fair apportionment the republicans will gain from 15 to 20 Representatives and the same number of votes in the electoral college, and this one is to be made under republican auspices, which insures in advance its fairness.

CHARLES STEWART PARNELL, the Irish leader, is not the first man who sacrifice fame and honor for a woman. Simultaneously with the news that the divorce suit of Captain O'Shea, in which Mr. Parnell was named as correspondent, had been allowed to go by default comes the announcement that Mr. Parnell will not lead his party in the British Parliament this winter.

The close of the Stanley-Bartelot-Jameson controversy will probably be simultaneous with that of Mr. Stanley's American lecture tour.

KOCH'S GREAT REMEDY.

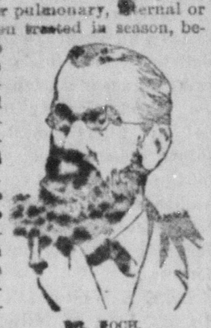
Consumption, Apparently, if Taken in Time, Can Be Cured.

HIS THEORY INVESTIGATED

It Seems to Prove That the Dread Disease, Whether Leprous or Pulmonary, Internal or External, Succumbs to the Timely Use of the Lymph.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—In view of the intense interest manifested by the entire civilized world in Professor Koch's wonderful discovery for the cure of consumption, and the eagerness of the public to acquire some positive knowledge of its efficiency, the Dunlap Cable News company sent a responsible correspondent to Berlin to investigate thoroughly the workings and effects of the new treatment. The correspondent spent over a week with Dr. Koch and his assistants, who offered him every facility to arrive at a true verdict, which he sums up as follows:

"In a nutshell, it is that consumption, whether leprous or pulmonary, internal or external, can, when treated in season, before bacilli have done their terrible work of destruction, be cured, and in fact is now being cured in Berlin, by a new and simple treatment. In the Charite hospital, on the Cool embankment, I have seen over 50 patients convalescing under the new treatment, which, though first put into practice on Sept. 7, the point to not a few patients who are now convalescent, and, so far as human foresight can foresee, definitely cured."



DR. KOCH.

Professor Koch, on being interviewed by the correspondent, gave the following interesting account of the discovery and effect of the inoculating lymph:

The Inoculating Fluid.

"I discovered the tubercular or consumptive bacillus eight years ago. Its existence was at first warmly disputed, but is now generally admitted. I have ever since been engaged in the study of the deadly germ, and have been endeavoring to obtain an inoculating fluid which would kill the bacilli and bring about a sufficiently strong and healthy local reaction to dislodge it from the body without at the same time destroying healthy organisms. Of course, the latter problem has been the difficulty. Here is a vial of the inoculating fluid. It is, as you see, of a dark brown color, and is easily decomposed.

"There is very little use of my saying just now what the inoculating fluid is or how I obtained it. It has cost me years of my life, and I propose to retain the secret for a few weeks longer, though it is already known to my assistants and to many of my professional friends. Its preparation demands infinite pains and exactness. I believe I am discreet on this subject with good and sufficient reason. The experience of premature disclosures has made me wise.

"I calculated I have wasted one year of my life in combating some captious and not perfectly conscientious antics of my original work. Were I to publish how the first stage of the discovery was made, the exact ingredients and the method of the preparation of the fluid, thousands of medical men from Moscow to Buenos Ayres would to-morrow be engaged in concocting it, and injecting it, too, for that matter.

The Reason of Secrecy.

"Such experiments might cause incalculable harm to thousands of innocent patients, and at the same time bring into discredit a system of treatment which I believe will prove a boon to all mankind.

"I believe I have the right to have the first experiments made before my own eyes, and with the tools which I have made and tested. If these experiments turn out successfully, then the medical world will find me and my devoted assistants only too ready to initiate them into the intricacies of the treatment without the least reserve. But until then, although it seems, perhaps, selfish, I really claim it is at once our duty and the purest unselfishness to conduct these early experiments.

"In cases in which the physical condition of the patient was good, lupus has yielded easily to the inoculating treatment, even when the cases have been of many years' standing. The bacilli have been destroyed completely after a number of injections, of course varying with each case, and the web of lupus has in some cases been sloughed off, but in the majority it has been easily removed surgically.

"The scar which marks the spot where it existed is not so large, or the disfigurement anything like so great as is the case with the sharp spoon treatment, in which the tissue is scooped out; consequently the danger of lessening the usefulness of the affected limb is much less, and I think the danger of a recurrence is also lessened.

The Effect on Consumptives.

"Now, as to the effect upon pulmonary tuberculosis, or consumption of the lungs, though the disclosure is premature, I will state just how we stand. I have twenty patients with whom I personally follow the treatment minutely, and they represent (and I have of course chosen them on this account) the graduated stages of the disease.

"In fifteen of these patients the bacilli have completely disappeared from the sputa; they have gained much in weight, in general appearance and in spirits, which last is not to be a neglected symptom.

"In the remaining five cases, I regret to say, there is not the slightest indication that the ordinary course of the disease has been stopped. These are cases in which I found already large cavities in the lungs. In these the cough, the rattle in the throat and the almost undiminished number of bacilli in the sputa continue. All of these symptoms, I repeat, have disappeared in the other cases.

"Of course nothing can be considered final yet, the first injection to a human being having only been made seventy days ago. I hope for good results in all cases in which the vital organs are intact."

Time Must Decide.

The discoverer's own relation of the results, says the correspondent, may be said to be too modest and almost pessimistic, in view of the results which have been obtained.

Naturally, the external or enfrous tuberculosis has responded more quickly to the [illegible] internal, and the more mysterious manifestation of the terrible malady. Yet while there are many lupus patients who have already left the hospital and the several private clinics where Professor Koch has personally put into practice or superintended his new treatment, there are also many lung consumptives whose organs, though they have not been six weeks under treatment, are quite free from the deadly bacilli. A healthy color has replaced the hectic flush, appetite and joy in life have replaced the languid melancholy indicative of later stages of the deadly scourge.

Whether this is a complete extermination of the deadly parasites and whether it will be followed by immunity from their reappearance in the future is a question which only time will decide. Careful medical luminaries like Professors Senator and Gerhardt, who have followed the new treatment from its very inception, are inclined to the belief, which they openly express, that when the bacilli are destroyed before any organ vital and necessary to life has been seriously injured, there will not be, in a majority of cases, a reappearance of the deadly parasite.

How the Lymph Is Made.

The preparation of the inoculating fluid also takes much time, and those who can wait had better watch the course of events for a few weeks before coming to Berlin. And especially, as it cannot be too often repeated, those patients whose lungs are gone had better remain at home. Such cases are merely being experimented on here, but without the slightest hope or pretension of curing them.

The Frank Courier states that the lymph used by Professor Koch for the cure of tuberculosis is prepared in an incubating stove within a space that is hermetically sealed and sterilized, and thereby rendered free from foreign germs.

The interior of the airtight space is divided by an unglazed porcelain diaphragm into an upper and lower section.

In this upper section is placed a salted meat broth (agar) in a gelatinous state, containing colonies of the tubercle germ. This mass gradually liquefies and the gelatine liquid drops slowly through the porcelain plate into the lower section.

The liquid then contains all the secretory products, but is free from all living or dead germs or reproductive spores, and is the lymph as used.

THOSE SCARED DEPOSITORS.

The New York Run Continues—The Newark Fright Dying Out.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The run on the Citizens' bank continued Friday morning. As early as 6 o'clock crowds began gathering about the bank and were formed in line by the police. When the doors opened at 10 o'clock the crowd made a rush and forty or fifty got in and were paid off. Quite a number wanted to leave a dollar or two on deposit, but the receiving teller would not allow any lower account than $10 to $15 to remain.

The finance committee of the bank held a meeting, at which it was determined not to take advantage of the privilege of the ninety days' notice to withdrawing depositors, but to keep right on paying out to all who demanded their money. The bank started in with $160,000 left over from Thursday, and in the course of the morning President Quintard drew $100,000 more from the City National bank and the Mercantile Trust company in order to be fully prepared in all emergencies.

Speculators buying up depositors' books continued doing a thriving business this morning at the rate of from ninety-three to ninety-five cents on the dollar. One speculator told a reporter that Thursday he bought up $3,200 worth of claims at ninety-five cents on the dollar and $700 worth Friday morning. The bank officials say that while they deprecate the machinations of the speculators they have no legal means of stopping them.

Newark's Scare Dying Out.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 22.—The run on the Howard Savings bank is beginning to die out. Around the bank Friday morning there was a big crowd, but every one was promptly paid off, and it was observed that the crowd was gradually diminishing, so much so that by noon only a few persons were in the bank drawing money.

President Frelinghuysen said that he thought the scare was about over and that Friday would finish it. He said it was a senseless scare, and the depositors were beginning to realize that the bank had profited by it and they (the depositors) had lost their six months' interest.

THEY CAUGHT MARKS.

The Cool Young Thief Arrested by the Police of Utica.

UTICA, Nov. 22.—Moses S. Marks, who so coolly stole $25,000 in Rochester on Thursday, was arrested here by the police on a description of the man sent from Rochester. All but $350 of the money was found in a satchel he had with him. Detectives Hayden and Cavanaugh, of the Rochester police force, arrived here Friday and identified Marks as the man who was wanted. The money found in his possession as well as the prisoner were turned over them by the local authorities. Marks was handcuffed to Officer Cavanaugh, and the trio left for Rochester on the 11:40 a. m. train.

Marks absolutely refused to talk about the case, and would only say that he was guilty and had got himself in a hole. He seemed depressed. A crowd gathered at the depot to see him off. Detective Cavanaugh said that Marks was wanted on two charges, one for forgery preferred by the bank and the other for grand larceny preferred by the express people.

Chief Dagwell and the Utica police force received numerous congratulations from the mayor and city authorities for their good work in the case.

Michener Will Probably Resign.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 22.—Some fifty or more of the leading Republicans of the state met here to consider the political outlook and arrange for a complete reorganization of the party preparatory to the campaign of 1892. Chairman Michener stated that he intended to leave the state soon and intimated that it might be wise for the committee to select a successor as chairman. The members replied that they were not prepared to act on the matter now, and the subject was dropped, leaving Michener still at the head of the party organization.

An Assemblyman in Trouble.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22.—Assemblyman Ewing has been arrested on a charge of embezzlement. He is charged with stealing the sum of $6,000 from the market street railroad, of which he has been collector for the past sixteen years. He was caught in the act of stealing money from a box of one of the cars. He confessed his guilt.

TROUBLE IS IMMINENT.

Hostile Indians Still Carrying On Their Ghost Dances.

WITH GUNS STRAPPED ON.

Agent Royer Says the Dances Must Be Stopped, and Stopped at Once, and That Nothing Short of Bloodshed Will Accomplish That Result.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 22.—An Indian from Wounded Knee gives the information which has caused the agents and all to put on a more serious look. Coming in yesterday noon, he reported that the hostiles at Wounded Knee were still carrying on their dances, and that they had heard of the arrival of the military; but what is of much importance to the agents is that they have strapped on their guns and are dancing fully armed. They declare that they will meet the soldiers and will not hesitate to go into battle with them.

Reports relative to the Indians declaring their willingness to fight for their religious craze have come in frequently, but up to this time are simply rumors. This information comes direct, however, from a source which Agent Royer pronounces trustworthy. The man who brought it is one of the agent's carriers.

The Dances Must Stop.

"I think it is just as well that the people outside be placed in possession of the exact facts in this case," said Mr. Royer. "It is not worth while to deny further that the trouble is imminent. Every one of these hostiles is heavily loaded with ammunition and will use it. I have been among them before."

"What are you going to do?"

"We can do nothing yet until the interior department and the war department give instructions. What we think most advisable to do is wait and let them play their part. They will do it, too. Bloodshed is all that will stop them now."

"That applies to stopping the dances?"

"Yes, sir; they must be stopped, of course, and soon."

Gen. Brooke himself reports it almost impossible to get new information. In fact there is nothing more than the certain determination of the Indians to resist to the last any attempts to stop their dancing.

The ghost dance has never been described. It consists of a collection of a hundred or more, generally more, Indians, who form a ring around a tree, within which are placed clothing and gifts for the Messiah.

Dance Themselves Into a Frenzy.

An order has been received at Fort Omaha to have the four remaining companies of the Second infantry ready to go to the front at a moment's notice. The companies immediately began to pack up, and inside of two hours everything necessary in a winter campaign was ready to be placed on board the cars. These companies, so far at least as the commanders are concerned, comprise some of the oldest Indian fighters in this section of the country.

At a late hour Thursday evening it was learned from couriers that not only have the Wounded Knee Indians continued the dance since they learned of the arrival of the soldiers, but those at White Clay and Medicine Hat are also in it, and are dancing themselves into a frenzy. All these districts are close at hand.

Agent Royer computes the actual number of able bodied men who are prepared to fight, and who are thoroughly armed, at 600. The squaws, who are by no means a trivial factor in the fight, of course stretch that number away out. As yet no orders have been given to re-enforce the 600 men now in camp here, but if it becomes necessary there are more than a dozen companies under marching orders.

Trouble Predicted.

The information from the Rosebud agency is contradictory, and is based entirely on rumors, one of which is to the effect that Jack Redcloud sent a warning to the Niobrara garrison to keep out of this trouble, as it was a battle for religion. The Indians are molesting nobody as yet, and do not object to having the few whites who have this belief to witness their dance. In fact, they put in extra kicks at such times for the evident purpose of convincing them that they are in earnest.

There is not a man in the agency who knows anything about Indian character who does not predict trouble. The opportunities are better than for years, as the religious nature of the revolt, for revolt it has become, is such that the traders, and especially Messrs. Cooper and Royer, say it is almost certain to result in a hot campaign. The average strength of the Indians' ammunition is 200 to 300 rounds to each man. If the Indians choose they might easily make a detour, the citizens here claim, and destroy all means of communication.

Dancing in Nakedness.

PIERRE, S. D., Nov. 22.—Capt. Norville, special Indian agent stationed at this point, returned yesterday from a trip up the Red river, where he had gone on the receipt of the report that the Indians, on account of the Messiah dance, were failing to attend the distribution of rations and were killing cattle. He reports that he found the Indians very much excited, and keeping up their famous ghost dances with a zest and perseverance that are alarming. He found Hump Rod, with about 300 braves of the Two Kettle band, all painted up and acting in a very suspicious manner.

The Indians danced all night, and although it was quite cold they were without a stitch of clothing, this being one of the regulations of the new dance. When the captain, who is well known among the Indians, went into the camp the Indians refused to recognize him, and he could get no information from them whatever.

Cowboys who arrived here last night stated that the Indians had killed a number of cattle and were acting in a very strange manner, and that the famous Indian, "Stepps the Cripple," had told them that they had better keep on their guard. The Indians purchased twenty-five ponies of one of the cattlemen, and told them that they were all going to Montana to see the Messiah.

They're Mad Burglars Now.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Nov. 2.—Burglars blew open a safe in Parker's hotel at the aqueduct, four miles from this city, early Friday morning, and secured $2,055 worth of notes, none of which is negotiable.

WASHINGTON WHISPERS.

Congressman Cannon on the Pensions—The Supreme Court Judgeship.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Congressman Cannon, of Illinois, the chairman of the house committee on appropriations, has arrived in Washington. He told a reporter that he apprehended in a general way that when the adjudications under the new pension law were made the pension roll would reach $156,000,000 a year. He estimated the cost of the new law at $50,000,000 a year. Mr. Cannon said he had no doubt that the revenues of the government under the new tariff law would be sufficient to meet all the ordinary expenses of the government and pay $150,000,000 a year for pensions.

"I include also the sinking fund," added Mr. Cannon; "but we have anticipated the sinking fund by $900,000,000, and we are so far ahead that if we don't pay a cent under the sinking fund act for the next ten or twelve years we will have just caught up."

Mr. Cannon thinks that beyond allowing a possible rebate on tobacco there will be no tariff legislation during the coming session.

The Vacancy on the Bench.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—There seems to be a general impression in supreme court circles that a Michigan man will be appointed to the vacant supreme court judgeship, and that Alfred Russell, of Detroit, had been or will be selected. Mr. Russell has the indorsement of Secretary Proctor and a large number of prominent men, and when in Washington last week called at the White House in company with Secretary Blaine. He is a distinguished and able lawyer, in the prime of life.

Almost a Disaster.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Nov. 23.—An accident occurred on the Long Island railroad at Valley Stream Friday morning and came very near resulting in a terrible disaster. The rear section of a freight train was left standing across the main line track a few minutes before the passenger train was due. The latter consisted of six cars, which were filled with passengers. The trains collided, but the passenger kept the rails, although there is a steep embankment where the collision occurred. Eleven freight cars were derailed and smashed. Many of the passengers received painful bruises and cuts, but no one was seriously injured.

The Brake Beam Broke.

MERIDEN, Conn., Nov. 23.—By the breaking of a brake beam of one of the coal cars of a freight train on the Meriden, Waterbury and Connecticut railroad at the Southington road trestle Friday eight cars were derailed just after leaving the bridge. Two cars went down the embankment, which is forty feet high, and dragged with them James McDermott and William Hart. The former was fatally injured and the latter seriously. It is the third accident that McDermott has met with on the road within the past few months.

Fatal Fun.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 22.—Samuel Klingensmith and W. H. Mathias, members of a shifting crew, were killed on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad at Rankin station. The men were playing on the cowcatcher of the engine, when suddenly both fell off on the track in front of the train and were killed. Mathias leaves a widow and children.

Congressman Hitt Seriously Ill.

GALENA, Ills., Nov. 22.—A telegram received here announces the serious illness of Congressman R. R. Hitt, of the Sixth district, at his home in Mount Morris. Mr. Hitt is suffering with pneumonia.

The Weather.

Fair till Sunday; warmer; southerly winds.

His Labors Completed.

BERLIN, Nov. 22.—Buildings in the Moabit suburb of this city have been temporarily allotted to Professor Koch by the municipal authorities for the purpose of assisting him in proceeding with his experiments in the direction of discovering a cure for infectious diseases, such as scarlet fever, measles, diphtheria and typhus fever. The professor will also pursue his investigations into the nature and treatment of cancer in this building. It will be possible to accommodate 150 patients in the temporary hospital.

Professor Koch considers that his labors in connection with tuberculosis are completed.

A Fraud on Its Face.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 23.—Suit was begun by the attorney general yesterday to wind up the Educational Endowment association of Minneapolis, a big concern operating in alleged life insurance. Policies were taken out in the names of children, and matured if the children lived to be 12 years old. A tremendous business was done. In the complaint it is charged that the Home Trust company of Minneapolis, was built up out of profits illegally and fraudulently converted from this endowment association. Fraud and mismanagement by Jacob Merritt, the secretary and manager, are charged, and it is alleged that the association is insolvent and a fraud on its face.

The Last of the Gang Caught.

EL PASO, Tex., Nov. 22.—Al Vandergriff, the third of the three cowboys who attempted to hold up and rob a Texas and Pacific train at Kent, east of this city, Monday night, but who were beaten off after a sharp fight, was arrested at Alpine and brought here.

Knocked Off a Train.

MERIDEN, Conn., Nov. 22.—Three men were knocked off a train on the Meriden, Waterbury and Connecticut railroad at the trestle on Cheshire street crossing, four miles west of this city, Friday morning, and fatally injured.

Ex-Assemblyman White Dead.

AUBURN, N. Y., Nov. 24.—Hon. Coral C. White, member of the assembly from Cayuga county in 1887 and 1888, died at his home in Ledyard.

Colonists in a Pitiful State.

ABILENE, Kan., Nov. 22.—A returned colonist from Topolo-Bampoo, who left there Nov. 1, says the colonists are in a pitiful shape, being without proper food or clothing. Their crops have failed, and they are unable to get back. It is 600 miles south of Arizona to their location, and they have no communication but a monthly steamer. The co-operative theories have been given up, and all are struggling for an existence, living on corn meal, beans and a little fruit. There are 200 colonists left, they being from Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri. They are all anxious to return.

ALL AGAINST PARNELL.

The Rank and File of the Liberal Party Resent His Leadership.

CATHOLIC PAPERS BITTER.

The Tablet Says as a Leader He Ought to Be Impossible in the Future. Must Be Thrown Overboard Says Liberal Editor Stead.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The feeling among English Liberals on the subject of the O'Shea revelations continues to grow. Mr. B. Rickard, M. P., one of the most influential among the workingmen's representatives in parliament, is quoted as speaking very strongly against the continuance of Mr. Parnell as a Liberal leader. Mr. Rickard said:

"The Liberal party represents the working people and the so called middle classes, among whom the purity of home life is held in high esteem. We have neither the time nor the inclination for debauchery, and we want our leaders to be men that we can take by the hand. When Hon. Joseph Biggar died leaving a good deal of property to an illegitimate son and the son's mother, we were a good deal surprised and shocked; but this case is far worse. How can we condemn the aristocracy for their licentiousness if our leaders are not men at least decent in their domestic behavior?"

Liberals Indignant.

Mr. Long, M. P., says: "Half of Mr. Gladstone's unexampled influence with the British masses springs from his exemplary domestic life. I think Mr. Parnell should retire until things blow over." The Nonconformist clergy, who exercise a vast influence among the Liberals, the bulk of the English Liberals being Nonconformists, are quoted by the provincial papers as calling for a change in the Irish leadership. All indications point to dissensions among the English Liberals regarding Mr. Parnell's position.

The morning papers again publish column upon column of gossip and opinion upon the Parnell matter, including references to it made in various speeches by politicians in the provinces, interviews with prominent men, letters to the editors, etc. It is impossible to disregard the fact that the Liberal rank and file are everywhere showing signs of indignation at the apparent disposition of the leaders to ignore Mr. Parnell's offense.

Mr. Stead, the noted Liberal editor, declares his opinion that Irish home rule may as well be relegated to the planet Saturn unless Mr. Parnell is thrown overboard immediately.

The Tablet's Warning.

The Tablet, referring to the O'Shea-Parnell matter, says: "In itself the conduct of Mr. Parnell cannot prejudice the Irish cause in either land. But it will be a different thing if his followers persist in retaining him, in the teeth of the abhorrence of their Liberal allies, as co-leader with Gladstone. Intercourse with Mr. Gladstone will be especially difficult."

"There ought to be no hesitation on the part of the Nationalists. In the interest of elementary morality Catholics are bound to sever their connection with Mr. Parnell. They may gratefully remember his services, but as a leader he ought to be impossible in the future."

The weekly Roman Catholic papers of England are unanimous in editorial condemnation of Mr. Parnell in connection with the scandal recently exploited in the divorce court.

The Vanderbilts Admit It.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The Vanderbilt people now admit that Gould has got control of the Union Pacific. One of the parties named as a director said: "The board will soon be reorganized. Mr. John D. Rockefeller, working with Mr. Gould, has brought the change about, and Russell Sage, Jay Gould, H. B. Hyde and Alexander Orr will take the place of four of the present members. The resignation of President Adams will be received, and he will probably be succeeded by Sidney Dillon, who is now one of the directors. The same authority states that Frederick L. Ames has agreed to the steps named by Messrs. Rockefeller and Gould. He refused to speak about the future of the road in regard to the northwest traffic agreement.

BRIEF MENTION.

Mr. Whitelaw Reid, United States minister to France, accompanied by Mrs. Reid, has left on a two months' tour of Turkey and Egypt.

Surgeon General Hamilton recommends legislation by congress to keep criminal, lunatic and pauper immigration out of the United States.

Queen Emma took the oath as regent of the kingdom of Holland, at the Hague. The route taken by the queen in going from the palace to the parliament house, where the ceremony took place, was lined with spectators, and her majesty was cordially greeted by the people.

The International Law and Order society's meeting was opened in Pittsburg, with Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale and other distinguished men in attendance.

Capt. Casey, president of the board superintending the trial of the new gunboat Concord, telegraphed to Secretary Tracy that the test was unsuccessful.

The national commission on the World's fair in Chicago definitely settled the question of site by providing that the main exhibition be located in Jackson park, the art gallery, music hall and electric display on the lake front, and the overflow in Washington park.

The Brooklyn police have nearly completed the census of that city. Estimates show that it will increase the population by 40,000 in excess of the federal count last June.

Mrs. Elizabeth Siffel, of Brooklyn, is anxious to find her husband, who went to Pittsburg some twenty years ago, as he has been left a fortune of $350,000 in Germany.

The New York and New Jersey Bridge company propose to bring all railroads centering at New York into a great union station within the city. The bridge which is to accommodate this traffic is to cost between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000.

Chief Hennessy's Assassins.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 22.—The grand jury has reported true bills against the seventeen men under arrest charged with the murder of Chief of Police David C. Hennessy on Oct. 15 last. The grand jury has been in session two weeks and examined seventy-five witnesses. It is expected the trial will be fixed for an early day.

FASHION NOTES.

Richly repped bengalines are favorite fabrics this season.

New diagonal striped silks, especially in inch wide stripes of black with brown are seen in new imported gowns.

The preference is for four button gloves of glace kik for wearing with tailor made gowns.

A novelty is tartan plaid stockings to match plaid gowns. Black stockings remain in favor for children.

New plaid wool dresses have a coat of plain cloth, with vest, sleeves, and skirt of the plaid taken bias.

White gloves are fashionable worn with evening toilettes; but light tan shades are by no means abondoned.

White or cream tinted paper is the preferred stationery, though some delicate neutral tints are also used.

All coats are cut longer than those of last year; but the most fashionable are not greatly lengthened.

Sleeves of coats are set high above the shoulders, and are large enough to go on easily over the ample sleeves of gowns.

White silk stockings and white slippers are worn with white evening gowns; and colored gowns will also have slippers to match.

A novelty for white wedding gowns is ivory white satin, brocaded in true lovers' knots in palest silver. The back of the bodice and the long train is usually of this rich brocade, while the front of the waist and skirt and the large sleeves are of mousseline chiffon. The silver knots being cut out to hold the chiffon drapery.

A Servicable design for a winter jacket, suitable to wear with most any gown, is made of black scouring cloth. The vest is of green broadcloth, nearly covered with applique leaves and flowers of black Persian fur. Braiding of gold and black soutache is amid the fur figures. Ball-shaped buttons of black and gold with simulated button-holes complete the trimming. The pockets are lengthwise slits, into which the hands slip easily.—Godey's Lady Book.

The First Bucktail.

In giving the honor of having worn the first bucktail during the late civil war to John Owens, of Potter county, a city contemporary is certainly in error. Owens claims to have enlisted in August, 1861, and have presented himself the following day at Coudersport wearing the emblem which afterward became so historic. This assertion is made in the face of facts recorded in the history of that terrible conflict, which says that the first regiment wearing the bucktails reported for duty at Camp Curtin on the 24th of April, 1851, four months previous to the enlistment of Owens. So far as the writer has ever been able to trace back the history of that famous cap ornament, the first ever worn was by George McQuown, of Lock Haven, and John Murphy, of the State of New York, both afterwards killed at the battle of Drainsville, they procuring their bucktails from Peter Smith, an old hunter residing on Boon's mountains, in Clearfield county, about eighteen miles from Clearfield town.

Ask Your Friends About It.

Gospel Meetings.

A series of gospel temperance meetings will be held all of next week, conucted by George Woodford, of Illinois. Mr. Woodford, through the courtesy of he Y. M. C. A. will occupy a portion of the time during their anniversary exercises to be held on Sunday, the 23rd, n the Presbyterian church. The meetings will be free. Mr. Woodford is a brilliant speaker and noble worker, as the following from the San Diego Sun will corroborate:

"The Young Men's Christian Association was favored by a lecture by Mr Woodford yesterday afternoon. The hall was filled to its utmost capacity. At the conclusion of his lecture fifteen young men arose for prayers.

A Tree Worth $5,000.

On the side of the Big Black mountain 3000 yards from the Wise county line, in Harlan county, Ky., there stood until last week a tree that is thought to be the most valuable tree in the South Appalachian Mountains. It is curled grain black walnut, and the owner had it grubbed up by the roots so as not to lose even a chip. A New York lumber dealer bought the tree from an ignorant mountaineer for $50, paid a man $30 to move it to the nearest railroad, and thinks he will make a profit of $5000 from the tree.

STILL SOME UNEASINESS.

Although Affairs Here and Abroad Are Looking More Favorable.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Money on call loaned easy today at 5 per cent. Exchange quiet but firm; posted rates, $4.83½@4.87½; actual rates, $4.79¼@4.79½ for sixty days and $4.86¾@4.87 for demand. Governments steady; currency, 6s, 112 bid; 4s, coupon, 119½ bid; 4½s do., 104 bid.

There is still some uneasiness in speculative circles, although affairs at home and abroad seem to be assuming a more favorable form. The cables from London this morning were more favorable. Representatives of the Barings said the failure of Barker Brothers & Co., of Philadelphia, had not the slightest effect over there. This was confirmed by the governors of the Bank of England and by J. S. Morgan & Co. This firm was only a correspondent of the Barings. The prices for American securities in London, however, opened ¼@½ per cent. lower. But this had no effect on prices here.

The opening of the market was strong, and the first prices were ½ to 1 per cent. above those of yesterday, led by Louisville and Nashville. The feature of the early dealings was Rock Island. It was freely pressed for sale, and after opening ⅝ per cent. lower at 64¼ it quickly retired to 67½. The general list sympathized to a small extent. When the selling of Rock Island ceased at the end of the first half hour the whole market began to boom, and prices advanced with but little interruption during the rest of the morning. Even Rock Island recovered sharply. At noon prices were up ½ to 3 per cent. The market at the close was dull. The sales amounted to 155,109 shares.

A Pastor Suspended.

STURGEON, Mo., Nov. 22.—Rev. T. H. Lockwood, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal churches at Sturgeon and Yates, central Missouri conference, has been suspended from all ministerial duty and church privileges. The suspension is the result of an investigation by a church committee into charges of immoral conduct brought against the preacher by female members of the church. Mr. Lockwood is a married man and has three children. He denies the charges.

He Will Be Hanged.

FINDLAY, O., Nov. 22.—Edward Blair, who has for a few days past been on trial for the murder of Arthur S. Henry in March last at Hartsburg, just west of this city, was found guilty of murder in the first degree at Ottawa and will be hanged. Only a few days ago Blair was foiled in a desperate scheme to kill the sheriff who had him in charge and the judge who presided at his trial.

Miners on Strike.

BRAZIL, Ind., Nov. 22.—The drivers and day men employed in the block mines appointed a committee to wait upon the operators with a demand for $2 a day. The demand was refused and the day men joined the drivers in a strike. The operators claim that to advance the price would be to disturb the market in violation of the yearly agreement. About 2,000 miners are thrown out of employment and the situation is becoming serious.

Successful Bank Robbers.

BROOKLYN, Nov. 23.—Yesterday afternoon the safe of the Twenty-sixth Ward bank was robbed of a package containing $5,000 in small notes. The robbery is supposed to have been done by two men, one of whom entered the bank and engaged the cashier in conversation, while another drove up to the bank in a light wagon and sent for the clerk, pretending to wish to deposit some money.

Counterfeited Postage Stamps.

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—S. A. Taylor, 50 years old, was arrested charged with being engaged in a scheme to defraud and uttering counterfeit postage stamps of various foreign governments. A large number of plates and stamps were seized in Taylor's room. Numerous circulars and price lists were also found. The stamps are excellent imitations and are carefully cancelled.

The West Wants Cleveland.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Congressman Bynum, of Indiana, who is a prominent candidate for the speakership of the house, said in an interview published here that Mr. Cleveland would probably be the Democratic nominee for the presidency in 1892. The people in the west, he said, have a confidence in Mr. Cleveland which cannot be shaken. They would stick to him because they believe he has sterling qualities which made him a man of the people. The Democrats of the west, said Mr. Bynum, talk of no one else.

The Boston Ideals Strike a Snag.

DULUTH, Minn., Nov. 22.—The Boston Ideals opened here for a three nights' engagement. A Wisconsin Central man came here with the company with an order for $130, and there was also an advance of $220 due the theatre here. When settling time came Col. Foster, the railroad man, and Manager Miller, of the theatre, couldn't come to terms, and the performance was stopped at the end of the second act. Foster said he will go on with the season, opening at Minneapolis Monday

Representative McKinley on the Work of the Coming Session.

FATE OF THE FORCE BILL.

The Major in Doubt as to the Action of the Senate on Lodge's Measure, but Is of the Opinion That the Republicans Agreed to Pass It.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Representative McKinley, of Ohio, arrived in the city Tuesday morning for the purpose of looking over the ground before the meeting of congress next Monday. In an interview he said that he was confident that congress would pass the circuit court bill, a modified shipping bill and the apportionment bill. The appropriation bills he believed would be disposed of before March 4.

In regard to the federal election bill Maj. McKinley expressed some doubt of the probable action of the senate during the coming session. He was, however, of the opinion that Republican senators were agreed to put the measure through. He had not talked with them lately on this subject and could not speak authoritatively. Of the possibility of an extra session in March Mr. McKinley said he knew nothing.

Want Huston as Chairman.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The impression prevails in Washington that United States Treasurer Huston will resume the chairmanship of the Indiana Republican central committee within a short time. A large number of letters have been received requesting him to take the management of the party in his native state as soon as he retires from his official position, and these have been supplemented by appeals from Indiana Republicans in this city and distinguished workers in the party from many other states.

So far Mr. Huston has given no intimation as to what he will do, but it is thought he will accept if he is formally asked to do so. Mr. Huston was chairman of the Indiana committee during the campaigns of 1886 and 1888, when the state gave a good Republican majority each time. He has the confidence of President Harrison as well as of the party at large in Indiana.

What the Alliance Intends.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Congressman Pierce, of Tennessee, is the first of the Farmers' Alliance members to come to Washington. He says that he thinks the alliance intends to advocate measures calculated to loosen the stringency in money matters. They believe, he says, that the existing stringency should be relieved and that congress has the power to do it. The sub-treasury plan, or something that will in effect accomplish the same end; will be urged, Mr. Pierce says, unless the tightness in money is relieved.

A Destructive Fire.

CHEBOYGAN, Mich., Nov. 26.—Fire started in the lumber piles on the Cheboygan Lumber company's docks. The wind at the time blew violently, and before the flames were controlled about 12,000,000 feet of lumber, together with tramways, docks, etc., were destroyed. The lumber was owned by Hurst, of Wyandotte; Rust, of Saginaw, and Nelson, of Cheboygan. Loss, $200,000; insurance, $30,000.

Her Son-in-law Arrested.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Nov. 26.—Lyman G. Clark, the son-in-law of Mrs. Miriam Marston, who was murdered on Sunday, was arrested early Tuesday morning charged with the crime.

BRIEF MENTION.

The queen of Portugal has been attacked by influenza.

THE INDIAN SITUATION.

Ration Day Passed Off Quietly and No Conflict Probable.

VALENTINE, Neb., Nov. 26.—The ration day passed off quietly at Rosebud yesterday. Very few, not over twenty, of Short Bull's followers were in, which is accounted for by the fact that they have helped themselves to the government beef herd.

There will probably be no conflict with the Indians unless the troops attempt to make arrests of the fanatics who are responsible for the theft of the beef from the agency herds. So far the only offense is the taking of the cattle, and the policy that is to be pursued in regard to this offense has not yet developed.

The number of troops is inadequate for anything except the defense of the agency against attack. The force is entirely too small to act aggressively. Four companies of the Twenty-first infantry are due here to-night to re-enforce Rosebud. This will make seven companies of infantry and two troops of the Ninth cavalry at that place when they get there.

This force is still too small for aggressive purposes. Without at least two regiments of cavalry it would be useless to try to force the Indians into subordination. The most economical plan would be the starving process, by placing the cattle herd beyond their reach, and thus compelling the Indians to come into the agency for something to eat, when it would be possible to arrest the leaders in detail.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 26.—Orders were received at Fort Leavenworth from Gen. Merritt at St. Louis late yesterday afternoon directing that the four troops of cavalry stationed here make ready for marching orders. It is understood that they will receive orders to-morrow to proceed to the northwest.

FORT LOGAN, Col., Nov. 26.—The field transportation for the troops at this post left here for the scene of the Indian troubles in Dakota. The entire garrison have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to move at a moment's notice.

SHOT HIS FRIEND'S WIFE.

Because She Wouldn't Allow Her Husband to Go with the Crowd.

BROOKLYN, Nov. 26.—Hattie Allabach, the young wife of Henry Allabach, who lives at 19 Havemeyer street, was shot at 6:30 Tuesday morning, while standing in the hallway of her home and is now unconscious in St. Catherine's hospital. Four young men are under arrest on suspicion of being implicated in the shooting. The prisoners are William Roberts, John O'Brien, Henry Babbington and Frank Pace.

The prisoners, as well as Mr. Allabach, are members of the O'Brien association. All four attended a ball Monday evening, and were returning home when they stopped at Allabach's house. In answer to their summons Mrs. Allabach came downstairs and asked what they wanted.

"We want Harry to come along with us," answered one of the men.

"Well, he can't come. You had all better go home and go to bed," replied the young wife, and she slammed the door. As she did so she felt a sharp pain in her right side and heard the report of a pistol. One of the crowd, so the police say, fired the shot. The bullet was of 32-caliber and was fired through the door. Within a half hour all the men were arrested.

The prisoners were arraigned before Justice Goetting later in the morning, and were held to await the woman's injuries.

The Stewart Will Contest.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—In the case of Sarah Brannagh against William P. Smith, Counselor Secor, on behalf of the plaintiffs, filed several affidavits in the United States circuit court in support of the affidavit he has made to take the evidence of Dr. Erastus E. Marcy perpetuam rei memoriam concerning the will and codicils of the late Alexander T. Stewart. In his own affidavit Counselor Secor avers that Dr. Marcy is infirm and feeble, being some 70 years of age, and unable to walk a rod, and that he may not live if the trial of this action is long postponed. It is necessary that the testimony of Dr. Marcy should be perpetuated to be used on the trial. Counselor Secor further avers that from matter stated to him by Dr. Marcy, who was present at the time of the subscribing of said will, it is the opinion of deponent that his expected testimony will establish that a very grave fraud, if not a crime, has been committed concerning the paper waiting for probate as the last will and testament of Alexander T. Stewart. An affidavit of James Bailey, of Hempstead, L. I., is also submitted in which he says that the late A. T. Stewart told him on several occasions that he had made provision for his cousins Thomas and William, residents of Ireland. The commission has not yet been named to take Dr. Marcy's evidence.

Its Properiy Heavily Mortgaged.

DETROIT, Nov. 26.—The J. E. Potts Salt and Lumber company, one of the biggest lumber and salt concerns in the country, Tuesday morning filed chattel mortgages upon its property in upper Michigan aggregating over $600,000. The concern owns several sawmills at Oscoda, a railroad thirty-nine miles long, and several hundred thousand acres of pine and hard wood timber in Michigan, and employs nearly 1,000 men the year round.

A Brutal Husband.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 25.—Patrick McGrath, of 553 Warren street, was fined $25 in the First precinct court, Monday morning, and in default of payment he went to jail. McGrath, while drunk on Sunday, threw a pot of hot grease at his wife, missing her, but striking his 3-year-old child. The latter was severely burned.

The Dead Senior Vice Commander.

RUTLAND, Vt., Nov. 25.—Commander-in-chief Veazey, of the G. A. R., in general orders, announces the death of Senior Vice Commander Tobin, and calls upon all posts to display their colors at half mast on Wednesday, the 26th, the day of the funeral.

KOCH'S LYMPH ANALYZED.

Dr. Jolle Discovers No Harmful Properties in the Curative Fluid.

VIENNA, Nov. 26.—In the presence of a number of medical men, among whom was a representative of The London Lancet, Dr. Jolle yesterday analyzed Professor Koch's curative lymph. The doctor found no trace of any metallic substances or cyanic compounds, nor were ptomaines, the products of the action of bacilli and alkaloids, detected by the usual tests. Only the abundant presence of proteid substances, partly belonging to the class of peptones and partly tox-albumens and enzyms, or non-organized ferments, could be diagnosed.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—Dr. Bergmann, in his clinical lecture yesterday, warned his patients that no absolute cure had yet been effected by the use of Professor Koch's curative lymph.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—The faculty of the medical school have appointed Dr. Wurtz, director of the laboratory of that institution, to go to Berlin to study the Koch method of treatment.

SOFIA, Nov. 26.—A clerk of this city who was afflicted with lupus and went to Berlin for treatment with Dr. Koch's remedy has returned home appearing quite cured.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 26.—The medical corps of the Danish army has received a plentiful supply of the lymph used by Professor Koch in Berlin.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—Dr. Koeller, chief of the Charity hospital here, admits that wonderful results have been obtained by the injection of the curative lymph. He, however, asserts that as yet there has been no evidence of the lasting character of a cure. Still he admits that the lymph has proved indispensable in diagnosing cases where the existence of tuberculosis was in doubt.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Among the passengers who sailed for Europe Tuesday were Dr. Ramsey Wright, of the Toronto university, and Dr. William A. Taltavall, of this city, who accompanies William Degan, the consumptive selected by Dr. Shrady to go to Berlin for treatment.

SUCCI'S FAST.

He Is in Excellent Spirits and His Nervous Energy Intact.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Signor Succi seemed in excellent spirits Tuesday morning. He slept well until he was called at twenty minutes past 8 o'clock. The faster immediately stepped to the scales and his joy was unbounded when he found that he had lost but eight ounces since the day before. His total loss since the beginning of the fast is twenty-five pounds and thirteen ounces.

The signor's nervous energy still keeps up and the dynamometer registered his grip as forty-eight kilos. His pulse was fifty-three beats to the minute. He drank today fourteen ounces of kaiser water and took twenty-three drops of his elixir. Succi is beginning to depend more on the assistance of his elixir than heretofore.

Despite Succi's oft-repeated assertion that he "feels ver well," he is undoubtedly growing weaker, and the fact of his not losing so much flesh can be explained by the fact that he has very little to lose. Succi's wonderful nervous energy is keeping him up, and the man's remarkable will power will probably carry him through the undertaking.

Succi still takes great pleasure in smoking his pipe, and one of the first things he did on arising was to call for it and puff it contentedly for some minutes. Tuesday was the twentieth day of his fast, and he chalks off on the calendar the days as they pass with a genuine sigh of satisfaction.

The signor has prepared his menu for his Thanksgiving dinner, and will regale himself with two extra drops of his elixir and a Havana cigar.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

A Dozen People in Peril of Their Lives Through a Firebug.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—An incendiary fire at No. 378 State street Tuesday morning caused a loss of $500 and very nearly resulted in the death of a dozen people. A policeman saw a man light a bundle of straw and throw it into the basement of the building.

The officer caught the firebug, but was compelled to let him go in order to turn in an alarm. Thomas Doughterty, a pipeman, was among the first to enter the burning building. He was overcome by the heat and smoke and was carried out.

Four families living on the upper floors fled precipitately in their night clothes. The stifling smoke entered the next door, No. 380, the floors of which were occupied by several families.

When the firemen broke in the doors there they found nine persons lying unconscious in their beds. They were N. F. Livingston and his wife and their two children; Frank Beaumont's wife and child, Mrs. Peck, Miss Olga Peck and Miss Carrie Houseman.

All were overcome by the smoke and in a short time would have been lifeless. They were removed to a neighboring house and cared for. Nothing is known of the motive that prompted the firing of the house by the man that threw the burning bundle of straw through the window.

Two Railroad Smashups.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 26.—There were two wrecks on the New York and New Haven railroad, both blocking traffic more than any other wrecks for some time. The wrecks occurred at Coscob. A freight train going west dropped a brake beam while going at a good rate of speed, causing the rails to spread and throwing the train from the track. The cars were badly piled up. The train hands escaped by jumping. A wrecking train had hardly left this city when a message giving information of a more serious accident at Greenwich was received. The trains in the second wreck were freights bound east. The first train stopped at the water tank on a curve and set the signals and sent a flagman back. The signals were disregarded and the second section rushed into the first, resulting in a bad blockade. The cars took fire. The four tracks were effectively blocked against travel, and no trains went through or came from New York after the wreck occurred. Trains for the east were held on a side track, and trains leaving New York previous to the accident were stalled below Greenwich. At 10 p. m. a special was made up here and sent east.

TRUE IRISH HEARTS.

A Model Entertainment—One of the Best of the Season—Go to Hear It.

Nothing succeeds like success. The fifth annual tour of the "True Irish Hearts" company, headed by the eminent and popular Irish comedian, singer and dancer, Mr. Dan McCarthy. This pleasing piece is filled with quaint clearly defined characters, sparkling dialogues, witty repartee, songs and dances. One of the chief charms of the play is the central figure of "Lanty Lannigan," a fun-loving, quick-witted, true-hearted Irishman. This taking character is impersonated by Mr. Dan. McCarthy; indeed, his clever acting of the part has made the drama famous. Dan will enact the part of "Lanty" at the performance Thursday night and a popular rendition of the drama is thereby assured. Mr. McCarthy brings with him an excellent supporting company—an organization of artists—who have been with him for some time and are therefore well up in their respective parts. Miss Kitty Coleman, a sprightly actress, is adapted by nature for the impersonation of the bright eyed and pretty colleen that "Kitty Brady" is supposed to be. Another highly interesting personage is little Danny McCarthy, who takes the part of "Little Bright Eyes." He is a cute, cunning and clever tot. A trained dog "Nellie" brings down the house with its laughable antics. Quaint Irish music is furnished by a real Irish bag-piper. Mr. McCarthy and Miss Coleman are both accomplished singers and the sparkling Irish songs they will render are well worth the price of admisson The dancing is also very fine, especially that of little Danny, who is an accomplished dancer. The songs and dances introduced are all new and have never been sung before in Bellefonte. The new scenery that will be put on the stage is of the finest, showing the beautiful Lake of Killarney, the old Abbey and numerous of the wondrously fascinating scenes of Ireland. Therefore keep your eyes open, your ears on the alert, buy a ticket and be sure to go to the opera house on Thursday night and see this best of all companies.

—On Saturday night some one entered the summer kitchens of Mr. W. B. Maitland and Mrs. Pugh, on Spring street, and stole therefrom meat, bread, pies, butter and grapes in quite large quantities, so much so that the two families in question were left almost destitute of a Sunday dinner. It is generally believed that the depredators were tramps who wanted to lay in a good supply of provision to last them for a week or so. Such customers had better not try the game or they will be nabbed.

—Frank D. Briscoe, the great artist who painted the "Battle of Gettysburg" at the opera house Monday night next, is one of the great painters of the century. He is an American by birth, but studied in Europe and is, perhaps, the only American now living who could produce a work of this character.

Death of William Bradley.

William, son of James and Margaret Bradley, died at the home of his parents in Milesburg on Wednesday, November 18th, 1890, aged 21 years, 8 months and 13 days. For over fifteen years Willie has been a cripple—the result of an injury, received in early childhood. At times his suffering was intense, but always borne without a murmur. He was ever cheerful and ready to converse on any subject indeed, his fortitude and patience for one so young was marvelous. Everything that skilled physicians or loving hearts and willing hands could do to add to his comfort was done. He expressed himself as fully prepared and only waiting the summons "come up higher." The remains were buried at Curtin's cemetery, Rev. G. W. Bouse officiating at the funeral. For so long a charge in the home he will be greatly missed.

Yes, one more chair stands vacant
To-day around the old hearthstone;
One more lies silent—
One more loved one safe at home.

PARNELL STILL LEADER.

He Will Remain at the Head of the Home Rule Forces.

HIS FIAT LOUDLY CHEERED.

The Irish Members Assert They Will Resent Any Attack on Him in the House—Parliament Opened and the Queen's Speech Read.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The meeting of the Parnellite members of the house of commons, prior to the reassembling of parliament, was held Tuesday. There was an almost complete attendance of the members on this side of the Atlantic. Mr. Parnell as he entered was received with repeated cheers, and many of the members darted forward to grasp his hand. He looked calm and self possessed and called the meeting to order in his usual tone. He was unanimously re-elected chairman, and speeches were made by Mr. Sexton and others, expressing the complete confidence of the Irish party in their leader, and urging him to retain his place at the head of the party in the house of commons.

CHARLES S. PARNELL.

Parnell Will Lead.

Mr. Parnell replied briefly, without any direct allusion to the attacks upon him. He thanked the members for their continued confidence, and said that, in obedience to their will and that of the Irish people, he would remain at their head and labor to the best of his ability for the cause of home rule in Ireland. The announcement was received with repeated cheers.

The Irish memers will deeply resent any assault upon Mr. Parnell in the house, and answer it by allusions to the illegitimate children of the late King William IV and other noted instances of English depravity in high places. The speaker, it is understood, will take stringent measures to prevent allusions of a personal character.

Parliament Opened.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Immediately after the house of commons had been called to order Tuesday the lord chancellor arose and read the queen's speech from the throne.

The speech declares the relations of her majesty's government with those of the various foreign powers to be unchanged, and congratulates her subjects that the securities for the continued maintenance of peace appear to be undiminished. Negotiations with Italy in regard to the frontiers of British territory in northeast Africa and Abyssinia are in progress, although as yet no treaty with Italy on African affairs has yet been ratified.

With the king of Portugal a temporary arrangement has been made by her majesty's government whereby the most urgent questions at issue between Great Britain and Portugal as to their respective interests in Africa can be satisfactorily dealt with pending the results of further negotiation. The speech says that negotiations have been opened with France on the subject of the Newfoundland fisheries, and the hope is expressed that a solution of this vexed question, satisfactory to all the parties at interest, may be speedily reached.

In the preparation of the estimates for the coming year parliament might feel assured that the interests of strict economy would be preserved.

Ireland's Condition.

Her majesty views with pleasure the general condition of Ireland, which has sensibly improved under the operation of recent salutary legislation for the government of that country. Deep regret is expressed, however, that the serious deficiency in the potato crop in certain sections of the country threatens a recurrence of periods of severe distress, to which the people of western Ireland are peculiarly exposed by reason of the industrial and economic conditions under which they live. In this connection the hope is expressed that the measures taken and being taken by her majesty's government may at once mitigate the immediate evil and diminish the probability of its recurrence.

It appears to her majesty desirable, in order to secure an increase of contentment and a diminution of political disturbances in Ireland, that measures be taken for augmenting the number of proprietors engaged in the actual cultivation of the land. A measure having the accomplishment of this object in view would, therefore, at the proper time be submitted to parliament for its consideration.

Various Legislation.

The speech then recites the various measures which the government proposes to place before parliament at the present session.

Among these will be one for facilitating the transaction in Scotland and Ireland of the more important stages of private legislation affecting those countries. The speech continues by making the announcement that the attention of parliament will soon be directed to the matter of devising measures for alleviating the onerous burdens which the enforcement of the compulsory education law imposes upon the poor.

A bill providing for the exactment of a reformed system of county government in Ireland, analogous to that recently put in operation in Great Britain, and various other measures designed to improve the condition of the people will be prepared and submitted to parliament in time to permit of legislation being had thereon during the present session.

Took a Serpent to His Breast.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 26.—Nicholas Kill has been convicted of murder in the first degree for killing Jacob Kohn in 1887. Kohn gave Kill employment out of charity, and Kill requited by chopping off his employer's head and walking off in his boots. On a plea of insanity he was sent to the Rochester Asylum, but after two years' confinement was discharged. His re-arrest quickly followed, and after a stubborn defense on the ground of insanity he was convicted.

PLANS FOR THE BIG FAIR

The Question of Jurisdiction About Settled at Last.

BY A SPECIAL COMMITTEE.

A Joint Commission Decide Who Shall Manage the Affair, and Their Report Approved by the Local Directory. Now for the National.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Fifteen chiefs of bureaus and the director general will manage the World's fair. A board of reference and control, composed of eight members from the national commission and a like number from the local directory, will constitute a conference committee to settle all matters of difference that may arise in the management of the exposition.

All this depends on the adoption by the commission of the report of the special committee of the two bodies appointed to consider the question of jurisdiction. The local directory accepted the report unanimously, and it is expected the national commission will take similar action at the next meeting. The committee avoided the jurisdiction question and addressed themselves to the task of creating a system of bureaus that would leave out of consideration all disputes concerning the respective powers and duties of the two bodies.

The New Scheme.

The result after an all day conference was the plan that the chiefs of the bureaus are to be appointed by the director general, subject to the approval of the commission and the directory. The directory is to pay the salaries and expenses of the bureaus, but has the power to reduce the expenses of any department when it deems such action to be in the interest of the exposition. Material changes or modifications of the plans of buildings are to be made subject to the approval of the two committees on grounds and buildings.

The bureaus are to correspond to the departments of the classification system, to which are added bureaus of forestry and forestry products, publicity and promotion and foreign affairs.

The report of the conference was drawn by Judge Lindsay, of the commission, and Vice President Bryan, of the directory. The creation of the bureau of foreign affairs, however, is not to contravene the rights and powers of the committee on foreign affairs to control the disbursement of the $30,000 heretofore placed under their control.

A Little Breeze.

The foreign affairs committee's report recommended the adoption of W. F. Curtis' scheme to establish a South American bureau at Washington. The committee thought the scheme would result in an attractive and valuable exhibit.

Mr. Thatcher, of New York, opposed the report. His principal objection, he said, was to the partisan and political character of the scheme. The gentleman who proposed the plan was better equipped for it than any other man in the country, but he personally represented the gentleman who is now the secretary of state.

He objected to having the official seal put on a matter of purely political purpose, and which he believed was originated to further the political fortunes of the distinguished gentleman who occupied the chair of state.

Mr. Jones offered a resolution declaring that it was "not desirable to open the presidential campaign of 1892 on this floor at this time," and recommending that the committee's report be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Walter said there was not a shadow of politics in the committee's report. There was not a man on the committee who would not despise himself if he thought he had permitted politics to influence his action. If Mr. Blaine got any benefit through the action of the committee in arranging for a South American exhibit he was entitled to it. Pending the discussion the commission adjourned.

Scrofula

Is the most ancient and most general of all diseases. Scarcely a family is entirely free from it, while thousands everywhere are its suffering slaves. Hood's Sarsaparilla has had remarkable success in curing every form of scrofula. The most severe and painful running sores, swellings in the neck or goitre, humor in the eyes, causing partial or total blindness, yield to the powerful effects of this medicine. It thoroughly removes every trace of impurity from the blood and builds up the weakened system.

"My little daughter's life was saved, as we believe, by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Before she was six months old she had 7 running scrofula sores. One physician advised the amputation of one of her fingers, to which we refused assent. When we began giving her Hood's Sarsaparilla, a marked improvement was noticed and by a continued use of it her recovery was complete. And she is now, being seven years old, strong and healthy." B. When this shall have been effected nature will do the rest, and the days and nights of torture will be unknown.

The Temperance Meetings.

Mr. Woodford is proving himself one of the most entertaining and effective temperance orators that have yet appeared before a Bellefonte audience. Monday night only a fair assemblage gathered in the Court house but last night a flattering audience composed largely of men greeted the earnest speaker from Illinois. Mr. Woodford chose for his text:—"Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging, and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise" and based upon it a stirring plea to the drinker both moderate and excessive showing them the delusiveness of the cup, and by most forcible illustrations very apropos to his subject pointing out the folly and unhappiness of the drinker's life. The music led by Mr. Voris was a good feature of the exercises.

Mr. Woodford is a large handsome man and drives every point home with peculiar emphasis. The opportunity of listening to such a pleasing talker does not come to us every day, so improve it now by attending the meetings every night this week in the Court house. The meetings begin promptly at 7:30 o'clock.

—A good sized audience assembled in the court house on Monday night to hear Mr. Woodford, of Chicago, talk on temperance. Mr. W. is a good talker and what he says on temperance is worth while going to hear. Hear him to-night in the court house; also every night this week,

VILLARD'S MANAGEMENT.

It Left the Oregon Improvement Company Many Millions in Debt.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 26.—The reorganization of the Oregon Improvement company has been completed. Resident Manager McNeil has issued a circular announcing a number of changes in the heads of the departments.

HENRY VILLARD.

Mr. McNeil showed genuine surprise when informed of the reported application for a receivership. He said, "I don't know anything about it and have nothing to say about it." From another well informed quarter it was learned that the trouble dates back to the close of Villard's management of the company. When he left the company there was a floating debt of several millions, the existence of which could not be explained. This debt has never been cleared off.

When the first mortgage on the property was issued bonds were not immediately sold, but were hypothecated to raise money, and the company was on the verge of defaulting in payment of the money and going into the hands of a receiver. The second mortgage for $15,000,000 was given last spring and bonds were issued, the proceeds to be used in building the Port Townsend Southern railroad from Port Townsend to Olympia; the Seattle and Northern railroad from Anacortes to Hamilton, and the building of the Olympia and Chehalis Valley road, which runs from Olympia to Tenino. The last named road was to form a part of the Port Townsend Southern, which it was proposed to finally extend to Portland. These bonds were never sold, but were hypothecated in the same way as the first issue. The loans are now falling due and are understood to be the cause of the trouble.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 26.—The attorney for the Oregon Improvement company, Mr. J. C. Haines, of Seattle, states that he knows nothing about the report that the company is financially embarrassed and that a receiver will be appointed. He declares that so far as he knows the company is perfectly solvent. Joseph Simms, whom the report mentioned as the probable receiver, could not be found.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The Commercial Advertiser says: "The receivership for the Oregon Improvement company has already been applied for. This fact is stated in a circular now in the printer's hands to be issued to the stockholders of the company from its offices in this city. This circular is issued in the hope that some of the leading stockholders of the company may, by the favorable showing made, be induced by purchases of the consolidated bonds to supply the company with funds to pay off its obligations and resume possession of its property at an early date."

Another Villard Property Affected.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 26.—E. C. Wall, manager of the Badger electric light plant, which is controlled by the Villard syndicate, has been suddenly summoned to the east. Although it was claimed last week that the extensive Milwaukee properties controlled by Henry Villard would not be affected by the financial straits in which Villard again found himself it is now admitted by W. A. Walker, the local attorney of the Badger company, that the company is in trouble. Of what specific nature this trouble is the parties interested naturally conceal.

Failed for a Million.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The suspension of Richard H. Allen was announced on the Cotton Exchange Tuesday afternoon. The assignee is F. K. Walter. The liabilities are understood to be about $1,000,000.

The parent house of the firm was located in Memphis, Tenn. This house failed and was the cause of the suspension of the New York branch of it.

A Financial Crisis in Buenos Ayres.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—A special cable dispatch from Buenos Ayres received here Tuesday reports a financial crisis as existing in that city. Several credit houses have already closed. A tumult occurred on the Bourse, which was quelled by the police.

THE BASEBALL MUDDLE.

The American Association May Amalgamate with the Players' League Remnant.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 26.—It is the belief among the best posted on current baseball gossip that the newly organized American association will include Washington, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Boston in the east, and Columbus, St. Louis, Chicago and Louisville in the west, and that there will virtually be an amalgamation with what is left of the Brotherhood league. There is no authority obtainable for this statement, as the delegates to the Association meeting just held here refuse to commit themselves to interviewers.

Managers Barnie, of Baltimore; Schmelz, of Columbus, and Von der Ahe, of St. Louis, severally denied any intention of assisting in getting rid of Syracuse, Rochester and Toledo, and as the managers of these clubs declare that they will remain in the Association, it is difficult to see where the majority necessary to oust them is to come from. It looks as if a purchase of the franchises of the three objectionable clubs will afford the only solution of the difficulty.

Evacuation Day.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Evacuation day was ushered in at sunrise Tuesday morning by the hoisting of the Stars and Stripes over the old fort at Central park and also at the Battery. At the latter place the national colors were thrown to the breeze by William C. R. Forbes. There were present many members of the Association of 1786. At the Central park Adjt. J. Gould Warner was the master of ceremonies, and when the flag was raised cheers broke forth from the members of the Continental guards, Veteran zouaves, and the Sixty-ninth regiment, who were in attendance.

Down an Embankment.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—On the North British railway a special train ran off the track and rolled down an embankment. None of the passengers is believed to have been fatally injured. The engineer, however, was instantly killed, while the fireman lost both legs, which were severed from his body.

Succi's Nineteenth Day.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Succi is now on the nineteenth day of his fast. His physical condition is good, but he is moody and irritable at times. His pulse was 68; temperature 97 4-5 and weight 121 15-16 pounds. His loss in weight during the past twenty-four hours was nine ounces.

The "Arizona Kicker."

We extract the following from a late issue of the Arizona Kicker:

A Foolish Idea—Certain people in this town are in the habit of shooting into our office every night or two, in hopes to riddle us. Sometimes they shoot through a window, and sometimes through a door, and although they have always wasted their lead we are growing tired of the operation. It is a foolish idea to suppose that we sleep in any one spot in the office on two successive nights, and if these would-be assassins haven't got sense enough to haul off we shall go into ambush outside some night and gather a couple more subjects for our private graveyard.

Giving Him a Show.—During the afternoon of Wednesday last, while out with the boys on the great rabbit hunt in Strawberry Valley, we several times felt the whizz of bullets and wondered who could be so careless. It seemed ex-Alderman Johnson, who was forced to resign when the Kicker showed him up as a bribe-taker, wasn't shooting at jack rabbits, but at us. He sent at least half a dozen bullets in our direction before the boys caught on to him. Then they would have hung him up but for us. We believe in giving everybody a show out West. We believe that is the way to build up the country. We begged Johnson off and gave him a show to repent of the error of his ways, and we hope he will have sense enough to profit by it. If not, he will be found playing pendulum some morning from the limb of a tree.

Explanatory.—The third column of the second page of this issue will be found blank. It is not our fault. Colonel John Lyloff, one of the old pioneers of this town, died last week, and his widow sent in an obituary notice which justified the column. We thought it read pretty strong when we set it up, but as the Colonel was the third man to subscribe to this paper and pay in advance we intended to let it slide. The forms were all ready for the press when a detective arrived from Portland to indentify the Colonel as a thief, embezzler, bigamist and all-round bad man. His proofs were so straight that we hadn't the cheek to publish the obituary. We sent a bouquet to the widow with our compliments, but that was the best we could do.

They Objected.—The twenty-two hands over on Smith's and Wiley's ranch are easily stampeded. One of them is named Haddon, and two or three weeks since we commented on the size of his mouth. We did it entirely in his praise, as we believe him to be the only man in Arizona who can hold a pint of water in his mouth. His friends got a wrong impression, however, and the other afternoon the whole crowd rode over on a personal visit. We didn't go off fishing because they were coming; it was simply a coincidence. We didn't borrow a mule and go off at a gallop because we didn't want to see the boys, but because we were limited as to time. We didn't wait until midnight to return because we had any fears but the fish bit so well we hated to leave 'em. Some day, when the cowboys have time, and everything is all right, we shall hope for a long visit and a friendly chat.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtain, Plainfield, Ill. makes the statement that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told us she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, she bought a bottle and found herself benefitted from first dose. She continued its use and after taking ten bottles, found herself sound and well, now does her own housework and is as well as she ever was.—Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery Keplinger's Drug Store, large bottles 50c and $100.

The Great Discovery.

New York World.

It is a pleasant thing to read that the German Government may recompense Dr. Koch for his useful labors with the sum of one million marks. As he has made a discovery that concerns the welfare of a large part of the population of every civilized country it is eminently desirable that the knowledge of all the process should become public. Indeed, the discoverer could not desire that it should remain a secret. Yet every one must feel that a reward is due, and that with the ordinary relations of doctors and patients the discoverer would forfeit any peculiar advantage from his discovery, if his secret is given to the world. The act of the Government in such a case overcomes all difficulties. This is one of the few things for which paternal government is good.

Such a proceeding, moreover, must have its weight with doubters. People not inclined to believe in brilliant successes in medicinal science will find it hard to convince themselves that a government so kind hearted in money concerns will bestow a million marks without the most substantial evidence that there is good reason for it. And the reasons that convince that government will probably convince all men when they set forth. Indeed, we hear already that Nothanagel and Billroth, of Vienna, who have been informed of the whole process are satisfied of its great value. If men of their rank in the medical world, having heard the evidence and seen cases, are convinced, more distant men who can only hint a doubt may pass unheeded.

Doubt will of course always survive. There are still men who dispute the rotundity of the earth. One physician does not believe that a medicine which merely kills microbes will cure tubercules because he does not believe the disease is due to a microbe! He says it is due to sour food and is to be cured, we believe, by raw beef. There must be homœopathy in this because the relations of tuberculosis to the bovine race are pretty well known, and cooking is regarded as a recognized method for killing even microbes. In France they even say that to use cows' milk without boiling is to invite tuberculosis, and that the use of uncooked beef tempts fate in that direction.

Against all these eccentricities of opinion the new discovery will probably make its way to human confidence, just as vaccination did, or as chloroform has done.

A Mother's Vigil.

"The Western and Atlantic train left the track last night at McIver's, and Richard McClain, fireman, was killed."

That was the message, almost brutal in its brevity, that was flashed over the wires from Atlanta to the Times last Friday night. He was only a fireman, of small consequence to this matter-of-fact world, with its rush and bustle, and so a three-line paragraph in the morning papers was his obituary.

But back of this bare notice of McClain's death is one of the most pathetic stories in the history of railroad accidents in Georgia. The dead man had a mother and family, who lived in the valley of the famous Chickamauga, and about them centres the pathos of the story. But let Engineer Adamson, who stood weeping over his friend, tell it.

"He was a good boy," he said; "one of the best hearted men in the world. And he loved his family so! Every night when he would run by his home his mother would put out a light to let him know that all was well, and he would answer by a light. Last night she may have watched all night, for he didn't pass, and no doubt she was troubled with the thought that something was wrong."

And something was wrong.

While the faithful mother, with her lamp of love aflame, was straining her eyes through the darkness of the night to catch a gleam of the flashing headlight that announced "All's well" with her son, that son was stark in death.

The eyes that had watched for the light in the window that told of the safety of mother and kindred were glazed by death. No more would they strain through the dusk of the valley for the red ray which conveyed to him a message of love from home.

Richard was dead by the track!

The loving mother, what of her?

Through the dark watches she waited by the window, in her hand the beacon that assured Richard of the well being of the jewels of his heart.

But the rush and roar of the engine and the flashing of the headlight through the swart reaches of the valley never came.

The minutes ticked slowly by.

"Richard is late to-night," thought the loving woman, "but I'll wait awile longer. It is almost like a visit from him to catch a glimpse of the headlight."

So she waited till her eyes grew heavy with sleep.

And Richard was dead by the track

Finally she said:

"I'll leave the lamp in the window and lie down awhile. I can hear the roar of the engine in time to wave the light.

Slumber came unconsciously to the loving but tired eyes. When she awoke the sun was shooting his silver arrows through the chinks of the room. The faithful heart turned toward the window. The lamp was extinguished. The mother sat up with great eyes staring at the darkened lamp. A shadow of woe came darkling over her, chilling the warm love currents of her heart.

For—Richard was dead by the track!

Light and love had died together.

THE DUDE HAS A HEART.

A Poor Mother Generously Assisted By a Fashionably Dressed Young Man.

The following pathetic incident in a railway station in the west is related by railway correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette:

It was a day when two or three passengers entered a train on the Northwestern road at Bridgewater. Among them was a stylishly dressed young man, who wore a stiff white hat, patent leather shoes, the neatest of cuffs, and the shiniest of stand up collars. He carried a cane and carefully brushed the dust from the seat in front of me before he sat down.

Just across the aisle opposite him sat a tired woman holding a baby. I never saw in my life a more discouraged, worn-out, despairing look than that on the mothers face. The baby was too sick even to cry. It lay moaning and gasping on its mother's lap, while the dust and cinders flew in at the open doors and windows. The heat and dust made travelling, even for strong men, unbearable.

I had put down the stylish young man in front of me as a specimen of the dude family, and was making a mental calculation on the probable existence of brains under the new hat, when, to my astonishment, he leaned over the aisle and said to the woman:

"Madam, can I be of any assistance to you? Just let me hold your baby a while. You look so tired."

The woman seemed much surprised, though the request was made in the politest and most delicate manner.

'Oh, thank you, sir," said she, tremulously. "I am tired," and her lips quivered.

"I think the baby will come to me," said the young man, with a smile. 'Poor thing! It's so sick to have any objection. I will hold it carefully, madam, while you lie down and rest a while. Have you come far?'

'From the Black Hills?'

'What! by stage?'

'Yes, but the baby was well when I started. I am on my way to friends in the east. My—my husband—my—'

'Ah, yes, I see, I see!' continued the young man, in a sympathetic tone, as he glanced at the bit of crape in the little travelling hat. By this time he had taken the baby and was holding it in his arms.'

'Now you can lie down and rest a little. Have you far to go?'

'To Connecticut' replied the woman, almost with a sob, as she wearily arranged a shawl over a valise and prepared to lie down in the seat.

"Ah, yes, I see! And you have not money enough to go into a sleeping car, have you, madam?'

The poor woman blushed faintly and put one hand over her face while the tears dropped between her worn fingers.

I looked out of the window and a mist came over my eyes, while I changed my calculation of the young man's mental ability. He looked thoughtfully and tenderly down at the baby, and in a short time the mother was fast asleep.

The woman sitting across the aisle from me, who had heard as much of the conversation as I had, came and offered to relieve the young man of his charge. I am ashamed of myself for not offering to take the baby from the mother before. Poor little thing! It's asleep.'

'So it is. I'll surrender it to you now.' with a cheerful smile.

At this point the train stopped at a station, and the young man rose in his seat, took off his hat and said in a clear, earnest voice: "Ladies and gentlemen, here is an opportunity for each of us to show that we have been brought up in a Christian land and have Christian fathers and mothers. This poor woman," pointing to the sleeping mother, "has come all the way from the Black Hills and is going to Connecticut. Her husband is dead and her baby is ill. She hasn't money enough to travel in a sleeping car and is all tired out and discouraged. What will you do about it?"

"Do!" cried a big man down near the water cooler, rising excitedly. "Do? take up a collection—the American citizen's last resort in distress. I'll give $5."

The effect was electrical. The hat went around and the way silver dollars and quarters and 10 cent pieces rattled in it would have done any true heart good to hear.

I wish I could describe the look on the woman's face when she awoke and the money was given to her. She tried to thank us all and failed. She broke down completely. But we didn't need any thanks.

There was a sleeping car on the train, and the young man saw the mother and child transferred to it at once. I did not hear what she said to him when he left her, but it must have been a hearty "God bless you!"

John have you seen that woman lately?

John in astonishment, What woman? That woman picking grapes for Speer's Wines. Just see her in another column and read about it; the wines are found by chemists to be absolutely pure and equal to the best in the world. The Board of Health in Large cities and leading Hospitals have ordered the use of these wines in preference to all others. 7 1y

"Hello! Tom. Glad to see you, old fellow! It's almost ten years since we were married. Sit down; let's have an experience meeting. How's the wife?"

"Oh! she's so-so, same as usual,—always wanting something I can't afford."

"Well, we all want something more than we've got. Don't you?"

"Yes; but I guess 'want will be my master.' I started to keep down expenses; and now Lil says I'm 'mean,' and she's tired of saving and never having anything to show for it. I saw your wife down street, and she looked as happy as a queen!"

"I think she is; and we are economical, too,—have to be. My wife can make a little go further than anybody I ever knew, yet she's always surprising me with some dainty contrivance that adds to the comfort and beauty of our little home, and she's always 'merry as a lark.' When I ask how she manages it, she always laughs and says: 'Oh! that's my secret!' But I think I've discovered her 'secret.' When we married, we both knew we should have to be very careful, but she made one condition: she would have her Magazine. And she was right! I wouldn't do without it myself for double the subscription price. We read it together, from the title-page to the last word; the stories keep our hearts young; the synopsis of important events and scientific matters keeps us posted so that I can talk understandingly of what is going on; my wife is always trying some new idea from the household department; she makes all her dresses and dotes for the children, and she gets all her patterns for nothing, with the Magazine; and we saved doctor when he was so sick with the croup, by doing just as directed in the Sanitarian Department. But I can't tell you half!"

"What wonderful Magazine is it?"

"Demorest's Family Magazine, and—"

"What! Why that's what Lil wanted so bad, and I told her it was an extravagance."

"Well, my friend, that's where you made a grand mistake, and one you'd better rectify as soon as you can. I'll take your 'sub.' right here, on my wife's account; she's bound to have a china tea-set in time for our tin wedding next month. My gold watch was the premium I got for getting up a club. Here's a copy, with the new Premium List for clubs,—the biggest thing out! If you don't see in it what you want, you've only to write to the publisher and tell him what you want, whether it is a tack-hammer or a new carriage, and he will make special terms for you, either for a club, or for part cash. Better subscribe right off and surprise Mrs. Tom. Only $2.00 a year—will save fifty times that in six months. Or send 10 cents direct to the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th Street, New York, for a specimen copy containing the Premium List."

—The following from an exchange applies equally to Bellefonte:

"Now that we are getting into the active business of the season and the, Christmas trade has begun, it is incumbent upon the city authorities to do their very best to put and keep the streets in good and clean condition Monday the slight rainfall filled the streets with soft mud, which was carried from the crossings to the sidewalks making them sticky and uncomfortable. Every storekeeper and business house in the city is interested in making things as comfortable for customers as possible and especially for ladies, who were out Monday in large numbers, and found their work much interfered with the disagreeable muddy condition of streets, crossings and sidewalks."

WOMAN'S INTUITION.

Nearly Always Right in her Judgment in Regard to Common Things.

An old gentleman over seventy, came into the city from his farm without his overcoat, The day turned chilly and he was obliged to forego his visit to the fair.

To a friend who remonstrated with him for going away from home thus unprepared, he said: "I thought it was going to be warm; my wife told me to take my overcoat, but I wouldn't. Women have more sense than men anyway."

A frank admission.

Women's good sense seems to come from intuition; may it not be that they are more close observers of little things. One thing is certain, they are apt to strike the nail on the head, in all the ordinary problems of life, more frequently than the lords of creation.

According to Dr. Alice Bennett, who recently read a paper on Bright's disease before the Pennsylvania State Medical Society, persons subject to bilious attacks and sick headaches, who have crawling sensations, like the flowing of water in the head, who are tired all the time and have unexplained attacks of sudden weakness, may well be suspected of dangerous tendencies in the direction of Bright's disease.

The veteran newspaper correspondent, Joe Howard, of the New York Press, in noting this statement, suggests: "Possibly Alice is correct in her diagnosis, but why doesn't she give some idea of treatment? I know a man who has been 'tired all the time' for ten years. Night before last he took two doses of calomel and yesterday he wished he hadn't.

A proper answer is found in the following letter of Mrs. Davis, wife of Rev. William J. Davis, of Basil, O., June 21st 1890:

"I do not hesitate to say that I owe my life to Warner's Safe Cure. I had a constant hemorrhage from my kidneys for more than five months. The physicians could do nothing for me. My husband spent hundreds of dollars and I was not relieved. I was under the care of the most eminent medical men in the State. The hemorrhage ceased before I had taken one bottle of the Safe Cure. I can safely and do cheerfully recommend it to all who are sufferers of kidney troubles."

Waterloo and Gettysburg.

No man, since the beginning of time, ever commanded so many men as Gen. U. S. Grant; and, no nation ever buried so many men—the result of one war—as we did. Why we actually buried one man to every 35 of our population; for in 1863, if I remember rightly, we had (not including the slaves and colored people) but 28 or 29 millions of souls in the 32 States that then comprised our Federal Union. Compare that loss of life with some of the great wars of Europe, and you will see, at a glance, what our great fighting amounted to. Take the war of 1870, between France and Germany, for instance. As the result of that war, the Nation, engaged, buried not quite one man to every twelve hundred of their inhabitants, while we buried one to every 35. Do you know that the eight Southern States alone, in their futile efforts to establish the Confederacy buried more than the great military Nation of England has lost in all her wars in the last eight centuries, since the time of William the Conqueror to the reign of Queen Victoria, and yet such is the case.

Of this stupendous war, the battle fought on the soil of Pennsylvania, was certainly the most important. Waterloo and Gettysburg were the most decisive battles of the century, and between the two there is a remarkable similarity. About the same number of men were engaged on both fields, and the order of battle was the same in both cases. At Waterloo, Napolean tried the same plan of attack as Lee did at Gettysburg; first assaulting the flanks, and then hurling an attacking column of choice troops against the centre. There was this difference, however, between the two battles: Where the old guard recoiled from the English centre at the farm of La Haye Saint, the whole French army promptly started for the rear, and the little Corporal [Napoleon] had all he could do to get away with the crowd; but when Pickett's and Hill's magnificent charge was thrown back, crushed and defeated, from Cemetery Ridge, the Confederates simply closed up their ranks and prepared to receive the counter attack that they expected would follow. The breaking ranks, total routes, surrendering large bodies of men, and all that sort of business so much in fashion in the armies of Europe, is something that our people don't understand. Our soldiers don't run away worth a cent.

From "Sketches of Gettysburg," by General St. Clair A. Mulholland.

—Captain Charles King, U. S. A., contributes the complete novel to the December number of Lipincott's Magazine. It is entitled "An Army Portia," and is characterized by that dash and breezy style which make all of Captain Kings stories such entertaining reading. Several of the characters of one of the author's former successful novels, "Two Soldiers," make their appearance in this new story. The "Army Portia" is a charming young girl who rescues her lover from the toils of a designing villain, and, by showing that certain evidence was manufactured, clears him before a court martial when everything points to his speedy conviction. The manner in which the public press is apt to malign army officers without sufficient investigation into the charges preferred is brought out in startling colors. The 'Army Portia' is one of the very strongest stories that its prolific author has yet written, and bids fair to be one of the successes of the season.

Ought Women to Propose?

"Ought women to propose?" Most certainly they ought. They do and have since the world began. They have an infinite variety of methods (for they are wonderfully versatile and adaptive creatures), compared with which "the simple, honest question" would be (there is no pun intended) as sounding brass. Could any words, think you, have carried to poor Lydgate a stronger conviction of her love than did the tears that stood in Rosamond's "forget-me-not" eyes? Was not Priscilla's roguish "Why don't you speak for yourself, John?" more direct and effective than the clumsily devised proposal of the captain of Plymouth? Othello's "On this hint I spake" seems to show that Desdemona had succeeded in making herself understood. If, as your fair correspondent has it, the lives of many of the finest, noblest women have been "tragedies" on account of the inability to make known their love, it is because Providence, though lavish in other gifts, denied them the power of expression, or else decreed that they should bestow their affection upon men of exceeding dull perceptive faculties, and it strikes me that the men in question must have been restrained by similar limitations or it would have been plain sailing. As surely, there is nought to be said either for or against it—it is Nature; her attractions and repulsions are independent of social conditions, and there will be complications and misunderstandings separations and "tragedies" so long as men and women continue the imperfect beings that they are: and, perhaps if they were not imperfect, there would be no attractions. Who knows?

Birthday Surprise Party.

On Tuesday, the 18th of November, Mr. Henry Gates, of Worth township, was 69 years of age and his friends bethought them to give him a little surprise. Accordingly invitations were sent around and on the day above mentioned about forty-five friends, including his brothers and sisters, with their families, his children and their families, and his neighbors, gathered at his home and enjoyed a regular old fashioned good time. To say that Mr. Gates was surprised would be putting it mildly; he was entirely overwhelmed. The good things to eat that were taken by the friends filled a large table to overflow, while the presents bestowed were both numerous and useful. One feature of the occasion was the taking of a picture of the entire group of brothers and sisters and children and grandchildren, nieces and nephews. It is only right to predict that the memory of that happy reunion will linger long in the hearts of all. We hope there may be many more years yet left to the man who has almost reached his three score years and ten.

A Narrow Escape.

A wonderful escape from a horrible death was made Wednesday in Lock Haven by a brakeman of one of the passenger trains on the Bald Eagle Valley railroad. The brakeman was walking on one of the railroad tracks near the passenger depot and when near the Henderson street crossing an Empire freight approached him from the west on the tracks at his right hand. He kept his eyes fixed on the approaching engine, and evidently did not hear the engine bell of a coal train which was coming up behind him. Several men who saw his peril called to him but the noise of the two engines and trains prevented him from hearing them. The engineer of the coal train sounded the whistle when the locomotive was within a few feet of the brakeman and that attracted his attention. As the iron monster was about to strike him he gave a leap and landed safely on the pilot of the engine. The men who had seen his danger and had turned away to avoid seeing the man ground to pieces under the engine wheels, and were never more surprised in their lives than they were when they saw the brakeman perched on the pilot of the engine. It is said to be the most wonderful escape on record.

—Miss Georgie Dean Spandling, the harpist in the Waite company orchestra was so prostrated with the sick head ache on Wednesday night on leaving the stage, after giving an encore, that she fainted and had to be carried to her dressing room. Mr. Waite had insistad on her not going on the stage to perform her solo but the lady would go, with the above result.

Invited to Have His Throat Cut.

John B. Redman, Esq., of Ellsworth once a Democratic candidate for Governor, had a most thrilling experience. In that city resided a barber, a good fellow and a general favorite, who, a few years ago, was taken insane. He was confined for a time in an asylum, but after awhile was pronounced sane and liberated; he at once returned to Ellsworth and to his business. Mr. Redman shaved there, and one day he went in and took his usual seat. The lather was applied to the well rounded throat and ruddy face of the rotund customer, and then the barber, taking out a keen razor, gave a professional touch along the strap, felt the edge, and propounced the startling question:

"Mr. Redman, would you, as a lawyer, say it would be wrong for me to cut your throat if I was sure God ordered it?"

Mr. Redman knew all about the former misfortune of the tonsorial artist and knew he was in a very dangerous position. Physically he was able to throw his companion out of the shop but seated, as he was, in a chair, with his hands under an ample apron and feet elevated upon a stool, he realized that any sudden move might result disastrously, especially as the razor was now open and quite close to his shirt collar. He made up his mind in an instant, and, instead of answering the question, put one. Directly in front of him was a large mirror and behind him was a window. Looking into the mirror there was reflected the epposite side of the street, and as the reflection of a citizen who was passing could be seen, Mr. Redman coolly said:

"Hold on a second. Is that Mr. Blank across the way?"

The barber went at once to the window to see who had passed, and with a great deal of alacrity Mr. Redman got out of that chair. With one motion he brought the apron across his face, removing the lather. "Excuse me," he said, "I want to see him," and, grasping his coat and hat, got out of that shop. He thinks he had a narrow escape.

Peterson's Magazine.

JUST WHAT THE HOUSEHOLD WANTS. It is only necessary to look at the December Peterson, to decide that it is the magazine for the people. Next year Peterson will hold its jubilee. To have been for fifty years the prime favorite in thousands of households is something to be proud of, and its popularity steadily increases. For 1891 the magazine will be enlarged, its attractions more varied, and its illustrations more abundant. This number seems about as full of handsome pictures as it can hold. Besides admirable steel and other engravings, there are various copiously illustrated articles. A capital paper, "Some Ice Carnival Sketches," gives, in addition to numerous smaller designs, two splendid full page cuts. "A Frozen Lake in Holland" and a "Snowshoe Race over Hurdles." "A Problem Never Solved" is the best short story Edward Fawcett has ever written. The fashion department will save any woman money enough to doubler her dresses, enabling her to make them at home, and the decorative designs will help her to ornament her rooms at an almost nominal price. The lady who neglects to have Peterson on her list for 1891 will make a great mistake. Now is the time to get up a club. Terms: $2.00 a year, 2 copies $3.50; 3 copies $4.50, with a handsome premiup to the getter up of the club; 6 copies $9.00, with an extra copy of the magazine for one year to the getter up of the club. A sample copy, with full particulars will be sent to Club raisers. Address PETERSONS MAGAZINE, 306 Chestnut St. Philadelphia, Pa.

There came very near being an act at the opera house on Wednesday afternoon that wasn't down on the programme. Those that saw Jas. R. Waite pull off his overcoat thought it meant business.

Then and Now.

Before the election money was plenty and there was every prospect of a prosperous winter, with lots to do, good wages and good times generally. The election came and there was a general victory for the democrats and what has been the result. From the very morning after the election money seemed to grow scarcer, the financial world at once become depressed, firms began to fail and within the last two weeks there have been more and heavier failures and greater disaster in the money market than has been known for years. Wall street has been shaken to its centre, the London stock exchange has grown very shaky and even the United States treasury department grew uneasy. Mills have shut down, one in our own town, men are thrown idle and the prospects ahead are very dark and gloomy; yes, very discouraging indeed.

In Bellefonte there hasn't been so little money in circulation for a number of years as there is now. What business is being done is done mostly on credit; the man that wants to do a cash business has lots of time to count his day's receipts. There is certainly a cause for all this and what is it if not the result of the late election? Business men have no confidence in the democratic party to manage affairs to the interest of the nation. They never have done it and they never will. If this state of depression continues it will not be many weeks until from every corner of the land wil go up the cry "God help the poor," and all the time it is of their own making.

The Clara Price Monument.

The Karthaus Times, of the 19th, says: The Clara Price monument was put up in the Keepaydin cemetery on Thursday and Friday, Nov. 13th and 14th. It is made of Quincy granite. The first base is 14 inches high by 42 inches square; the second base is 8 inches high by 31 inches square; the third base is 12 inches high by 27 inches square; dye, 2 feet high by 20 inches square; plynth, 8 inches high by 17 inches square; spire, 6 feet high by 13 inches square; total heighth, 14 feet 4 inches. The following inscription is cut on it on the north; "Murdered near Karthaus, Pa., Nov. 27, 1889, by Alfred Andrews;" "Price" in raised letters.

On the east, "Clara Ida Price," born June 16th, 1873; died Nov. 27, 1889, aged 16 years, 5 months and 11 days."

On the south, "My Life for My Honor."

On the west, "Virtue Hath its Reward in Life as Well as After Death."

The cost of the monument was $318 and the foundation, etc., cost about $25. The monument will be unveiled Nov. 27th, the anniversary of her death. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Philadelphia Record.

"True Irish Hearts" opened yesterday afternoon and evening at the Lyceum Theatre to large and appreciative audiences. It is a beautiful play, well acted, and the scenic effects are grand. The company, too, is first-class in every respect. Dan McCarthy as Lanty Lanagan is a strong leader in the cast, and merits all the attention he received. His singing and dancing are excellent. Miss Kitty Coleman as Katy Brady shared the honors with the star. She is easy and graceful, and her brogue could not be improved upon. Little Danny McCarthy as Bright Eyes is a most remarkable child for his age, and sings and dances like an old-timer. His dancing in the second act caught the audience by storm.

The following is from the Tyrone Herald of Thursday: "At Howard last evening the ceremony was performed which united in marriage William J. Unveiling of Clara Price Monument.

J R Batchelder, of Lock Haven, has finished his contract of erecting a monument to Miss Clara Price, the victim of the villian Andrews, who was hanged at Bellefonte for her murder. The monument, which is a very handsome one, will be publicly unveiled in Keewaydin cemetery, four miles from Karthaus, on Saturday, Nov. 29, 1890, at 1 o'clock p. m., and the occasion is expected to be a very interesting one and will doubtless be attended by thousands of people.

—"Godey" for December is on our table, and all the fair sex are crazy to get it; no wonder. It is a real holiday number, and, like a Christmas stocking overflowing with good things. Pretty work designs give many useful hints for making Christmas gifts, while the whole household cannot fail to be pleased with the good and varied Christmas reading. KISSES.

(A la Romeo and Juliet.)

A prominent physician calls the kiss "an elegant disseminator of disease." He says, "fever is spread by it, so are lung diseases." Out upon the grateful and sapless vagabond! Evidently kisses are not for such as he, and the old fox says the grapes are sour. Let him devote himself to making our women healthy and blooming that kisses may be kisses. This can surely be done by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which is simply magical in curing disease peculiar to females. After taking it for a reasonable length of time there will be no more irregularity, backache, bearing-down sensations, nervous prostration, general debility or kindred ailments.

DOINGS IN COURT

Newspapers Impeached—Assault and Battery and Other Criminal Cases.

After the preliminary opening of the court on Monday morning the counsel for John Wilson, the man charged with the killing of Harry Waterhouse, petitioned the court for a change of venue, that the murder case might be tried in another county. This petition was made, as the attorneys alleged, because the county papers had been too outspoken and thus prejudiced the citizens of Centre county against the prisoner. The Court refused to grant the rule as there is no law to support such a proceeding.

Several true bills have already been found by the grand jury. In the case of Commonwealth vs. Charles Hollingsworth, charged with carrying concealed deadly weapons, the district attorney moved that, owing to the lack of convicting evidence, the rule of 'nolle pros.' be entered and the prisoner be discharged. The Court so ordered and placed the costs on the prisoner who was discharged on the payment thereof. Everything else being now disposed of the Court ordered the district attorney to proceed to the trial of criminal cases by jury.

The first case that came to trial was that of Commonwealth vs. Warren and Jasper Steele, for assault and battery. Amos Straw was the prosecutor. After theCommonwealth had heard all its evidence counsel for the defense withdrew the plea of 'not guilty' for Jasper Steele and plead 'guilty.' As for Warren Steele his counsel moved for his discharge; prosecution objected and a five minutes argument was made to the jury after which that body retired and in a half hour returned a verdict of 'not guilty' but Warren Steele to pay the costs.

The next case called was that of Commonwealth against Luther Kline, charged with criminal assault and rape. Twenty four jurors were called before the requisite twelve men to compose the jury were obtained. After the swearing of the jury individually District Attorney Meyer opened the case for the Commonwealth.

The case of the Commonwealth against Luther Kline occupied the time and attention of the court all of Tuesday forenoon and part of the afternoon.

On Tuesday morning; just before noon, a petition was made to the court for the continuance of the Wilson homicide for the reason that one of the counsel for the defence, Mr. W. F. Reeder, was not in good health and his physician advised him not to attempt to carry on the case this court. His Honor, Judge Furst, considered this a more reasonable excuse than the one given on Monday by the other counsel for the defence when he petitioned for a continuance or change of venue because the newspapers had simply printed the truth, and the Court ordered the case continued until the January term of 1861. So that now John Wilson will have to languish in jail a couple of months yet before he will know his fate.

After the convening of court on Tuesday afternoon Jasper Steele was called forward and sentenced by the Court to pay the costs of prosecution and a fine of one hundred dollars, and to stand committed until the sentence was complied with, for his assault upon Amos Straw in May last. His brother Warren had arranged for the payment of costs as put upon him by the jury and had gone home.

In the case of the Commonwealth vs. John Wilson, for murder, the grand jury returned a true bill. As the case was continued all the witnesses summoned on the case were discharged on Tuesday afternoon.

In the case of the Commonwealth vs. William Hoover, f. & b., the defence changed their plea from "not guilty" to one of "guilty." Hoover was called forward and the usual sentence was imposed by the Court.

The next case on the list was that of Commonwealth vs. Charles Garis, f. & b. Defendant plead "guilty," and the usual sentence was imposed.

The jury in the case of the Commonwealth vs. Luther Kline, after being out but one hour, returned a verdict of not guilty of rape, but guilty of fornication. The prisoner was at once called forward and the maximum sentence imposed which was $100 fine, costs of prosecution and to stand committed until the sentence was complied with.

The next case taken up was that of Commonwealth vs. Albert Hoffman, charged with larceny. Prisoner entered a plea of "not guilty" and W. E. G. was appointed to defend him.

In the case ofCommonwealth against Gertrude Quick, for larceny, a true bill was found. The case was tried and a verdict of not guilty rendered.

In the case of Commonwealth vs. Albert Hoffman, after the hearing of the Commonwealth's evidence the defendant plead guilty to the second count of the indictment—larceny as bailee.

In the case of Commonwealth vs. John S. Zimmerman and John M. Parker, for violation of fish law, grand jury ignored the bill and put the costs on the county.

Also in the case of Commonwealth vs. Daniel Keefe, for larceny, bill ignored and county pay the costs. The prisoner was retained, however, and two other charges made against him, one for an attempt to break jail, and the other for assault and battery, the latter also having been committed while confined in the Bellefonte jail.

On Tuesday the Court issued an order for the drawing of 52 Petit jurors to serve the first week of the January court; also an order that the Jury Commissioners of Centre county meet and put the names of "650 sober and intelligent and judicious persons" in the jury wheel to serve as jurors during the year 1891.

COURT NOTES.

There is a good attendance at court this week.

D. S. Dunham, as officer of the grand jury; M. Morrison as constable, and H. H. Montgomery, Mr. Haupt and W. L. Wilson, of Stormstown, with B. Galbraith as court crier, make up the retinue of court officers that are serving this week.

The young lawyers at the bar seem to have considerable to do this court.

Ex Judge Orvis is in attendance at every session. He will be heard on the homicide case.

Quite a number of women are in attendance this week.

A Grand Move.

The Mayor of Williamsport has taken an advanced step to prevent the utterances of profane and vulgar language on the public streets. Swearing is a growing evil in all cities and towns and the Mayor of Williamsport will receive the thanks of all law-abiding and moral people who will wish him God speed in his new departure.

One of the greatest misfortunes is, that the most of men who seek office and make politics their business, are willing to make concessions to "the boys" who lounge on the street corners, squirt tobacco juice over the sidewalks and swear the louder, for the purpose of securing votes; this, too, in the face of the fact that the feeling and modesty of the female members of their household, are constantly being shocked when compelled to pass the resorts of these every day violators of the law.

Staggering drunken men and profanity on the public streets are a menace to the improvement to public morals as well as a monstrous example for the young and tender school children who are compelled to come in contact with profane people as they pass to and from the public school buildings.

We suggest that our voters consider this matter before the professional borough office seeker succeeds in having "his friends" commit themselves to support him "because he asked them and they did not think anybody else wanted the office to which he aspires.'

Thanksgiving Day.

Thursday is thanksgiving Day and on that morning all those heedful of the various proclamations of the civil authority will assemble at their respective places of worship and "thank God with all their hearts for the good world and the good things in it." And yet how few of the many that observe this day know its real origin.

Not more than forty years agoThanksgiving proclamations were issued only by the governors of Massachusetts and Connecticut. In the early colonial days the Puritans of New England abolished Christmas as a relic of Popery and prelacy, which was held in nearly equal detestation. Laws were passed to punish the observance of Christmas Day. Some day, however, was needed to replace this discarded holiday, and Thanksgiving toward the close of November, was selected to take its place. And so began this now universal American custom which is kept up in every part of the world wherever any little group of Americans happen to be gathered together. These serious colonists builded better than they knew, for while Christmas is shorn of none of its glories, another day has been added to the holidays of the people, and this day is happily given over to kindly reunions of families and friends, and something thereby added to that good will among men which binds society together in firmer fellowship.

Centre County Pomona Grange.

The next meeting of Centre County Pomona Grange will be held in the hall of Progress Grange, Friday, November 28th, at 10 o'clock. Let every subordinate Grange in the county be represented. The agents of the M. F. In. Co., P. of H., in Centre county, are expected to be present at this meeting. The committee on picnic will be ready to report at this meeting. Let there be a general turnout of patrons throughout the county. If there is any desiring to take the fifth degree it will be conferred at 3 o'clock.

I. C. GILLILAND, Secretary.

—Mr. W. B. Maitland, with his proverbial generosity, on Tuesday presented to each one of his employees a fine turkey for Thanksgiving. This is a yearly custom of Mr. Maitland and it seems to be one of his greatest pleasures to make others happy.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

The 20th Anniversary of the Bellefonte Association Held in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday Evening.

On Sunday evening the Presbyterian church was crowded to witness the celebration of the 20th anniversary of the establishment of the Young men's Christian Association in Bellefonte. Promptly at seven o'clock the Æolian orchestra, which was present, played a sacred overture, after which the retiring president of the Association, Mr. James R. Hughes, announced hymn 45 in Gospel Hymns No. 5, which was sung; also No. 65 in same book. This was followed with prayer by the pastor of the United Brethren church after which hymn No. 17 was sung. Rev. Miles O. Noll, of the Reformed church read the Scripture lesson from John 1-29.

Mr. James R. Hughes made the preliminary address in which he described the present work of the Association, gave a history of its past work and told what it proposed doing in the future. During the past year the Association has been more prosperous, in some ways, than ever before. There were held in their rooms 57 religious meetings with an average attendance of 25. During the week of prayer special meetings were held every night, the first night there being an attendance of about 80. The jail committee held 37 meetings in the cells of the condemned murderers, Hopkins and Andrews. Nine Union meetings were held out of town and each one was largely attended. The gymnasium was built and the apparatus purchased with the $175 fund donated by the W. C. T. U. to whom all praise is due. The receipts of the past year were as follows: $417 from the gymnasium fund; $461 from general subscription and $124.51 from special subscription and other ways, making a total of $992.51. The disbursements were $400 to Samuel Gualt on account of gymnasium; $219 to general secretary; $250 for rent of building; $30 for a note held by Centre County Bank; $40 for light, and other incidentals making the disbursements $992.51, leaving nothing in the treasury. The general Secretary, Mr. Drumel, is now employed the entire time instead of only evenings as at the beginning of the year. Mr. Hughes closed his speech with an appeal for help.

The 161st hymn was then sung after which General State Secretary, Mr. Charles Hurlburt, of Pittsburgh' was introduced. Mr. Hurlburt spoke at length on the Association and its work and said many good and encouraging things. We would like to reproduce some of his sayings but time and space forbids. After Mr. Hurlburt was through J. W. Gephart, Esq., arose and said he had gotten up a little speech part of which he had had set to music and then called on Mr. Voris to sing it for him. Everybody knows what a grand singer Mr. Voris is and the solo he sang, "Help just a little," was one of the best parts of the evening's programme. Mr. Gephart's speech closed the exercises for the young men and then the W. C. T. U. held their opening service for the week of prayer, Mr. Woodford of Illinois, addressing the vast audience. Rev. Laurie announced that on next Thursday morning, Thanksgiving Day, a Union service would be held in the Reformed church at which Rev. Hoshour would preach the sermon. Temperance meetings will be held every evening this week in the Court house under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. Everybody should attend.

Mr. Irvin Delaney, of Warriorsmark, Huntingdon county, paid his customary annual visit to Bellefonte on Saturday and while here paid his respects to this office. Mr. Delaney is a man we always like to see coming and we are glad to say that to such as he the latch string always hangs on the outside.

Court Opens.

Court opened Monday morning with the President Judge, A. O. Furst and Associate Rhoades and Riley on the bench. All the preliminary business was transacted, the grand jury was sworn in and the constables' reports were taken. Petitions were read and acted upon and then the court adjourned until after dinner when the week's work began in earnest.

—Some of Bellefonte's young men boys have a sick way of getting a marriage licenee. For instance: They go to the Recorder's office and get the license and on the record appears only the initials, "W. J. S." The recorder ought to be more particular and fill out the records, else how will the public find out when a young attorney gets married.

Ex-Judge and Mrs. Orvis have returned to their home in this place.

—And now the women are out on a swindling mission: Note the following: —A woman claiming to be selling chances on a gold watch and a bed quilt in the vicinity of Warriorfmark and Stormstown should be carefully watched by the residents of those localities. She is about fifty-four years of age, has dark hair and dark complexion. Her assumption and perversion of truth in different instances of which we have been told, render her open to suspicion. She claims to be working in behalf of one Mrs. Robinson, of Dry Hollow. There is no Mrs. Robinson in Dry Hollow.

At the Opera House.

On Friday night the Waite Comedy Company presented Harry Knight in the laughing sensational comedy "The Phœnix'. This was the most comic play yet given by the most excellent company. To-night the play will be'Hearts and Diamonds's. This is said to be the most taking play of the company's repertorie and all those who desire to have lots of fun and plenty of good music should attend the opera house this evening. Remember this will be the last opportunity to hear their grand orchestra and see the best of plays for a small price.

—What a blessed thing it is for a man or women to have a friend, one human soul whom he can trust utterly, who knows the worst and best of us, and who loves us in spite of all our fault; who will comfort and encourage us in the days of sorrow and diffiulty when the world leaves us to fight our own battles as best we can. If we have had the good fortune to win such a friend do almost anything rather than lose him. Hope all things, endure all things rather than lose that most precious of all earthly possessions—A tried and trusty friend. [But they are mighty scarce.]

BRYSON—SCHROEDER.

A Pretty Private Wedding at the Home of D. S. Keller, Esq.

On Tuesday morning at nine o'clock a select party was gathered in the parlors of the residence of Col. D. S. Keller, on Linn street to witness the marriage of Mr. William Bryson, a brilliant lawyer of Philipsburg, to Miss Rosa Louise Schroeder, sister of Mrs. Keller and a very charming lady. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Miles O Noll, of the Reformed church. After the mystic words had been spoken that united the happy couple, and the congratulations of those present showered upon them, all partook of a wedding breakfast, as sumptuous as it was delicious; and the way the good things disappeared disproves that old saw that one can live on love alone.

The bride was dressed in an elegant walking costume of a beautiful shade of bronze, running almost to the hue of an orange, and trimmed with fur. She looked very charming indeed. No inviations were issued consequently those present included only the relatives that reside in Bellefonte and the following friends of the bride who are visiting in Bellefonte: Miss Charlotte Powell, of New York; Miss Lillian Griger, of Reading, Miss Carrie Boyer, of Clearfield and Mr. George L Hagenman, of Reading, the latter the cousin of the bride. Cards announcing the wedding were sent to all their friends. Immediately after breakfast the happy couple departed on the 10.20 train for a brief tour. The DAILY NEWS joins with hosts of friends in wishing them long life and great happiness.

J. W. BLAIR, Teacher.

—A very prominent citizen up the country lost an amiable wife on the 5th of November, buried her with a husband's tears on the 7th, popped the question to a fair damsel on the 12th, had the license issued to marry, by Register Fullerton, on the 15th—the whole job completed in a little over one week.—Raftman's Journal. We always knew that Clearfield was a rushing place, especially when it comes to matrimony, but then we thought officials should have more respect for their friends than to allow such a thing to be done. We are sure it wouldn't be allowed in old Centre.

—Quite an extensive wreck occurred on the Pennsylvania railroad about five miles east of Tyrone on Monday morning in which a freight train was first wrecked by a collision and a few minutes later a passenger train ran into a wreck throwing the engine down a twenty foot embankment and derailing three cars. Fortunately no persons were seriously injured although there were some miraculous escapes. The passenger train wrecked is the same one that was wrecked at New Florence a week or so ago.

The remains were brought to Williamsport and interred in Wildwood cemetery in that city. Miss Fitzgerald was 22 years old and is said to have been a young lady of fine attainments. Her father is a poet of no mean ability, and formerly contributed to the Williamsport papers.

—One of the worst things to be feared in the present state of financial commotion is lack of confidence. Few men or business institutions can survive if they are pushed to make payment on sight before they have an opportunity to turn their investments into ready cash. Nothing is gained by precipitating a panic, but much is to be lost in retarding the business of the country.
